What is Return to Breeder Agreement? Every responsible breeder hopes that the homes they send their puppies to are their homes for the duration of their life. Unfortunately, sometimes life events are out of our control. Sometimes things like illness, moving overseas, divorce, or financial problems lead people to a situation where keeping a dog in their home is not in the dog's best interest. If something like this were to occur, County Line Kennels "return to breeder agreement" ensures that the dog's best interest is considered if a change of living situation is needed. We will accept any puppy back, but a refund WILL NOT be given.

Return of your puppy, if applicable should you choose to return your puppy

Buyer Name	_____	Date	_____
Reason for return	_____	Age of puppy	_____
Notes regarding return: _____ _____

There is a big difference between a Responsible Preservation Breeder and an irresponsible breeder. Sometimes referred to as "backyard breeders", irresponsible breeders breed dogs without much effort in breeding selectively and are generally doing it to make money or simply for the experience of raising puppies. A responsible preservation breeder is someone who is dedicated to contributing to the preservation and improvement of their Miniature Dachshund breed.
