Aleppo soap (or Savon d'Alep, if you're French) is, of course, soap: the stuff you wash with. It's a hard soap made from olive oil and lye, like Castile .soap from Spain

But Aleppo soap profits from being made with an extra-special ingredient that takes it to another level: oil of bay laurel. This precious oil, derived from laurel trees (like bay leaves), acts as a gentle cleanser and is well-tolerated

So what are the origins of Aleppo Soap? To answer this question, we'd like to take you back in time; go on, indulge us

As its name suggests, this unique soap originates from the ancient city of Aleppo, the main city in Syria's Levant region.

Historically, Aleppo was a central trade hub, thanks to its location at

Queen Zenobia of Syria was also a raving fan, probably leaving untold pictures of this natural soap on her Facebook page

Aleppo is said to be among the earliest soap producers. Myths abound that Queen Cleopatra of Egypt was an Aleppo soap fan before the first century AD, and these soaps were first introduced to Europe by the Crusaders in the 11th Century A.D

ALEPPO LAUREL OIL SOAP

This soap doesn't have a lot of ingredients, but they all-natural Olive oil, laurel berry oil, sodium hydroxide and water

Always check the product ingredients of the Aleppo soap you are buying: if .you see anything other than these four ingredients, it isn't the real thing

CAN I USE ALEPPO SOAP FOR MY HAIR ?

Aleppo soap is the original 'all-in-one' product and is perfect for all skin types, including skin prone to dermatitis and other itchy, inflammatory skin conditions. It can be used to wash the face, body and hair, and lathers well to create a natural shaving cream

Aleppo soap is perfect for all the family; so gentle, this soap is suitable for your baby's skin

Here are just some of the many skincare benefits of Aleppo soaps

Cleanses and purifies without stripping the skin's natural essential oils, leaving your hair in great condition

The olive oil hydrates, moisturises and nourishes dry, flaky skin

Oil of bay laurel can help manage skin problems like eczema, psoriasis, dermatitis and acne
