COMMON QUERIES

Reasons for air bubble formations on acrylic sheets

Acrylic are bonded in extremely humid conditions.

Use of water base synthetic resin adhesive any other than PEVA (Polyethylene Vinyl Acetate Co-polymer).

Debonding in certain areas because of uneven substrate surface.

Insufficient or lack of pressing during the bonding period of laminate.

When substrate loses moisture after installation.

Use of extremely large Acrylic/PVC laminate sheets.

To avoid delaminating / air bubbles in between ply and laminate the above steps should be taken care of. Bonding of acrylic sheets shouldn't be completed under high humidity.

Disclaimer

The products are tested to be reasonably free of defects, and when used and fabricated properly they will comply with the applicable manufacturing specifications within realistic deviations. We recommend customers to inspect products properly before installing. Product's warranty in no way covers defects and non-compliance from or otherwise attributable to any other causes, including, without limitation the following :

- ▶ Improper handling / transportation / storage
- ▶ Improper installation
- ▶ Improper or unintended usage
- ▶ Lack of or improper maintenance
- ▶ Exposure to high temperatures
- ▶ Unauthorized alteration to the product
- ▶ Outdoor applications
- ▶ Do not use plywood with high moisture content
- ▶ Do not use ply with uneven surface
- ▶ Avoid using inferior quality adhesive
- ▶ Apply sufficient pressure
- ▶ Avoid pasting or sheets on the printed/branding area of the plywood
