COMMITTEE, MINISTRY TEAM, AND OFFICERS HANDBOOK

I. THE WORK OF CHURCH COMMITTEES

Benefits:

1. The use of committees spreads the administrative load among members of the congregation and broadens participation. This provides church staff members and deacons more freedom for ministry to the people. Through committees, responsibility is delegated, and the church is helped to perform its tasks.
2. The use of committees utilizes skills and talents of members of the congregation and makes the church a more efficient and effective ministering body.
3. The use of committees gives opportunity for differing points of view to be presented and reconciled, thereby producing more harmony among church members.

Types of Committees:

There are two kinds of work done by committees in a church. The first type of work relates to the long term, ongoing ministries and programs that are basic to the church's life, such as the financial program. For this type of work the church needs to have committees that are permanent. Such a committee is called a standing (or regular) committee. The Budget & Finance Committee and the Personnel Committee are examples of standing committees. Members of standing committees serve for a one-year term.

As stated in our church Bylaws, members serve on a rotating basis, with a portion of the committee being replaced each year. Rotation assures that there are experienced members on a committee and, also, that there are always new people with fresh ideas being involved in church life. Standing committee members may serve up to three one-year terms, with one third of the group rotating off each year. After a year off, persons may be re-elected to the same committee if the church desires.

The second type of committee work in a church relates to short-term or temporary needs, such as planning for a homecoming or building a new facility. For this type of work, the church uses committees that operate only long enough to accomplish their assigned task. This kind of committee is called a special, or ad hoc, committee. A Building Committee and Pastor Search Committee are examples. The members of a special committee do not rotate, but serve as long as the committee exists.

Standing committees carry out very different functions from special committees. The work of standing committees usually revolves primarily around the needs of the church to maintain the best of what it now has. Standing committees give attention to maintaining, operating, and stabilizing already existing ministries and programs that are ongoing.

Special committees, in contrast, usually focus their work on the needs of the church that are short term, such as for constitutional revision or adding an addition to a building. They give attention to creating something new or to revising something old. Special committees are formed and disbanded as needed; they should not continue beyond the time needed to perform their church-assigned task.

In addition to committees, Living Word forms teams to accomplish various ministries of the church. Examples are the "Women's Ministry" and "Ushers." These teams are treated as special committees according to church policy and the general guidelines for committees are applicable to ministry teams. The section "Resources for Use by Church Ministry Teams" lists the specific guidelines for each team.

In planning an effective committee structure for a church, balanced attention should be given to meeting the need that a church has to maintain both long-term and short-term ministries and programs. Long-term ministries and programs require standing committees. Short-term ministries and programs need special committees.

Living Word Church

The members of all committees, both standing and special; Ministry Team members; and Church officers are recommended by the Committee on Committees and elected by the church.

Sunday School teachers and officers and teachers and officers of other church teaching groups are recommended by the Teaching Ministries Support Committee.

The Committee on Committees coordinates the work of all church committees ministry teams and coordinates reporting to the council and to the church business meeting as required. Since the church brings each committee and team into existence, each committee and team reports back to the church. There should be a regular time at each church business meeting for church committees and teams to report on work accomplished.

The chair of the Committee on Committees and the chair of the Long Range Planning Committee are members of the Church Council. Chairs of all other committees are ex-officio members of the church council, meaning that they are on call when needed.

Most of the new committees established by a church will be special committees – although it is not unusual for a new standing committee to be created.

When it seems desirable to form a new committee:

1. Determine the need for a new committee.
2. Formulate its purpose and duties.
3. Prepare to allocate necessary resources.
4. Present to the church for discussion and vote.
5. Submit personnel needs to the Committee on Committees
 - a. Present committee members, with chairperson designated for church approval.
 - b. Educate new committee members.

II. GUIDELINES FOR EFFECTIVE COMMITTEE WORK

1. Maintain a rotating membership for all standing committees, with one third of the members rotating off each year.
2. Maintain non-rotational membership on all special committees and ministry teams. Special committee members serve until the work of the committee is completed or the committee is disbanded by church action. Ministry team members serve as long as they are effective and feel led to continue.
3. Limit committee membership to two standing committees and, if desirable by the church, one special committee. (Make exceptions only in unusual circumstances.)
4. Members of the same family shall not serve on the same committee.
5. Have the Committee on Committees recommend members for committees, standing and special, to the church. The Committee on Committees should staff newly created committees with at least three members, with one third of the membership rotating off each year. Add additional members (in any quantity) as necessary, but maintain rotational membership for all committees.
6. Usually a committee member should not be re-elected to same standing committee for a period of one year, following three one-year terms.
7. Have the Committee on Committees designate the chairperson of each committee. For committees of five or more, a vice chair should also be designated. (This should be done when the committee members are presented to the church for election. Chairpersons of standing committees should be designated to serve one year. Chairpersons of special committees should be designated to serve until the committee completes its work or is disbanded by church action.)
8. Assign a church staff member to each committee to act as advisor and consultant. (In a single staff church, there should be no more committees than the pastor can counsel and advise adequately. If necessary, consider asking other key leaders for assistance.)

9. Be certain each chairperson understands that he or she, not the pastor or any staff member, is to lead the committee and that committee members, not the pastor or any other staff member, are to do the work.
10. The chairman of each committee should rotate each year in order for others to serve in leadership roles. This is essential for the long-term effectiveness of committees within an organization. Rotation should not be mandatory. Exceptions will be made in the event that an incumbent chairman is willing and capable of continuing, and no other member is willing to accept the responsibility.
11. The chairman and vice-chairman of our Committee on Committees and the Personnel Committee shall be ordained Deacons, active or inactive, at Living Word.
12. The Committee on Committees is responsible for seeing that job descriptions are written for every committee and for providing a copy to every committee member. In preparing job descriptions:
 - Use available material and information as a guideline (church practice, church bylaws, pamphlets, books, and resources from other churches).
 - Write with your church's needs in mind.
 - Secure committee approval on all parts of each description.
 - Copy the job descriptions and present them to the church business meeting for approval.
 - Make them a part of the bylaws or put them in a handbook to give to each church family. Families with internet access will be encouraged to read the handbook there rather than receive a paper copy.
 - Update the descriptions periodically as the church situation changes.
 - Provide orientation for new chairpersons and new committee members.
 - Meet with the chairperson of each committee periodically to discuss the work of the committee and to coordinate activities.
13. Set aside one night a month (or quarter) as the committee meeting night. (For example, the second Wednesday of each month before prayer service. Do not expect committees to have unnecessary meetings. Whether the various committees meet should be left to the discretion of each chairperson. Make the chairperson responsible for communicating to members when the committee is to meet.)
14. In the absence of the chairperson, the vice-chairperson shall be responsible for coordinating the meeting and setting the agenda.
15. All committee members shall reserve the right to call a meeting for the committee in which they serve by communicating this to the chair positions.
16. All committees are to be held accountable for their performance by the Committee on Committees. This committee shall act as a liaison and consulting resource to the committees and ministry teams as requested or required.
17. The Committee on Committees will instruct committees to report directly to the congregation during a regular business meeting when necessary or upon request. (Every committee should report, at least, on a quarterly basis.) Reports that involve major recommendations or require major decisions by the church should be shared with the church staff/church council and deacons for review and/or response prior to the business meeting. Committee reports to the church are beneficial because they:
 - Inform the church about the work of a committee;
 - Develop a spirit of achievement; and
 - Provide promotion for the work of a committee.
18. Committee members who need to resign from a committee should inform the chairman and submit a letter of resignation to the acting Committee on Committees Chairman or Vice Chairman. The resignation will become effective immediately and be presented to the church at the next scheduled business meeting.

Living Word Church

19. Inactive committee members shall be replaced at the discretion of the Committee on Committees based on recommendation of the acting chairman for specified committee.
20. Use Roberts Rules of Order to conduct effective, efficient meetings.

6. Review the existing policies and procedures annually, or as needed, and make recommended changes to the church in regular business sessions.

Bereavement Ministry Team

Principle Function

The mission of this body is to comfort a grieving member's family at the time of a death in the family. The committee is responsible for the provision and service of a meal for the member's family on the day of the funeral service. The committee also serves as needed to coordinate other ministry and community groups within the church as they minister to the member's family during this time of grief.

Relationships and Responsibilities

With Councils

1. Committee chairperson serves as ex-officio member of the church council as needed.

With Committees

1. Coordinate provisions for meat and paper goods with the Hospitality/Meals Committee.

With Church Staff

1. Inform the church staff and church membership of funeral arrangements and family ministry needs.
2. Plan and communicate with custodial supervisor to ensure that tables and seating accommodations are in place for meals to be served at the church fellowship hall. Cleaning arrangements will also need to be made if the meal takes place in the hall following the scheduled cleaning times to ensure that things are in order prior to upcoming services.

Duties

1. Contact the family as soon as the committee is notified of a death. At the appropriate time, establish the number of people to be served and what, if any, food allergies are known to exist within the family.
2. Contact the appropriate ministry groups (choir, Ladies, Men's or Sunday school, etc.) to make known any immediate needs and offer to coordinate any ministry that they wish to provide to the family.
3. Contact the church office with the information about time and place of funeral services and hours of visitation. Also inform staff of the time and place of the meal that will be served on the day of the funeral. The Flower Committee should also be given this information so that they can coordinate the ordering and delivery of floral arrangement.
