Another Amazing Health Benefit of Coffee: Improved Liver Function

You may think that liver disease is the outcome of severe alcoholism. However, modern-day processed foods and drinks are loaded with toxins that can stress the liver. Combined with water treatment, pesticides, pollution, and obesity it is harder than ever to maintain a healthy liver.

A team of researchers at Duke Medical School suggest that increased caffeine intake may reduce fatty liver in people with non-alcoholic fatty liver disease. The researchers went on to conclude that the equivalent of four cups of coffee would be extremely beneficial to liver function.

Another study published in Clinical Gastroenterology concluded that coffee consumption reduces risk of hepatocellular carcinoma, the most common type of liver cancer by about 40% and that three cups of coffee per day reduce liver cancer risk by more than 50%.

Ahhh....We'll drink to that!

Recipe: Salted Caramel Irish Coffee

Stir together $\frac{1}{2}$ cup sugar, 2 tbsp corn syrup, and 2 tbsp water in a medium saucepan.

Turn heat to medium and cook, stirring until the mixture bubbles.

Stop stirring and let boil until deep amber, 10-15 minutes.

Immediately remove from heat; stir in a cup of heavy cream. Stir briskly until smooth.

Stir in 2 tbsp unsalted butter, 1 tsp vanilla, and $\frac{1}{2}$ tsp kosher salt.

You can refrigerate up to 3 days. When ready to serve, brew KonAroma. Place 2 tbsp caramel sauce into each mug. Pour in the coffee, stir to combine, then dollop with whipped cream.

Ahhh yes..... that's KonAroma!

How could Dylan forget Old Blue Eyes' Coffee Song?

After months of rumors and anticipation.....Today is the day!

Bob Dylan has announced the details of his upcoming record, "Shadows in the Night". Produced by Dylan under his longtime pseudonym Jack Frost, the album features 10 songs popularized by Frank Sinatra, including "Autumn Leaves", "Some Enchanted Evening", "The Night We Called It a Day" and "I'm a Fool to Want You". The record is being released today!

However, they left out Sinatra's "The Coffee Song".
