SWINE FLU SCARE OF 2009

Well Glory!!

The swine flu or Pig Virus as they call it here is sure getting a lot of attention worldwide. Seeing everyone with protective masks on reminds us of something in the last time videos where there was a threat of germ warfare and everyone wore gas masks all the time. Everyone seems to be doing their part in combating this virus even some stores are wiping down the buggy handles with alcohol before you get them. We are in one of the three states hit the hardest by the virus. We watched CNN

Man in San Andres wearing protective surgical mask in town.

News and they said it started with a group of High School students who contacted it from Cancun. Here they are reporting that the same High School group contaminated Cancun. So who you gonna believe? All the public schools, churches and public gatherings in the whole nation are asked to close until May 6th due to the Swine Flu scare of 2009. Jeff's original plans were to fly into MX City but things never worked out so he had to cancel his tickets and start anew. The Lord knew before we did, that he would have less problems flying out of Veracruz than MX. City due to the Flu epidemic that cropped up while they were here. God is good and takes care of HIS own! By the way, we are both fine!

Abigail, Allison, Nathan and Jeff Fredericks on a visit with the Warrens.

DEAL WITH THE MAFIA

We thought we had crossed with ease at the border when we paid our taxes and breezed through the crossing without revision; then like a calf out of the shoot, a slender man in a 2009 beige Hemi with Florida tags tries to pull us over. He calls in reinforcements to cover each side when we kept on driving out of town. We drove several blocks before we decided to pull over at friends' mechanic shop in case something goes down. Karen thought she called 066, the police but instead dialed 065 the Red Cross by accident. But to God's mercy He allowed the mistake because it was explained to us by the mafia dude and the mechanics that they are all in hoots together. That although we paid our taxes to the government to cross into Mexico, we also had to pay them to cross through their territory. If we didn't pay, we would be stopped further up the road by the police and they would go through everything in the van and take whatever they wanted. Knowing it took Pat three days to pack the van so tight Karen couldn't fit a poster in, we thought the situation over very carefully. The strange fellow demanded payment of $150.00 US dollars to cross and Pat bartered him down to $75.00! What a Man!! He let us pass through. Then another few blocks, the traffic police pulled us over demanding we pay them but they didn't give us a reason. After Pat saw he wasn't getting anywhere with them, he demanded them to escort us out of the city and they complied. We were stopped 3 times by the Federal Police who were looking after our safety, where were they earlier?

AUGUST SCHOOL BOOK BAGS COLLECTED

We arrived home safely on Friday afternoon, the 17th, with over 150 book bags in tow! Seven local Louisiana churches had a week to participate in the challenge to fill book bags for our August Book Bag Bash. It is indeed a privilege to be your extended hands and outreach arms passing one blessing on to another! Thank you for the privilege! It is our hope that you receive as much of a blessing as we do in the August Book Bag Bash give-away! Thank you for filling the bags with school supplies for the students. We will keep you posted on the Back to School Give-Away this fall.

MANUEL GETS HIS OWN HOUSE

Last month the local government gave Manuel and his family a new home in a suburb of San Andres, about 15 minutes from the church. It's a duplex of concrete block with running water and electricity. Pat hooked up the shower faucet and toilet and heard ooohs and ahhs from the family who had never had inside plumbing in their home before. They are in a dry area of new construction. We are in the process of getting a few trees planted to provide them with a little shade.

BAPTIZED 13 IN THE BAY OF CAMPECHE

It was truly great to see everyone's hearts ready to publicly announce to the world their decision to follow Christ. Jeff preached a powerful message before we gathered on the beach under the thatched roof of the palapa for a brief teaching on baptism. There were 3 couples who were baptized together and 7 single folks from 23 to Pedro, 77 years old wanted to be first!

LOTS OF SALVATIONS AT KIDS DAY OUTREACH

*Abby Fredericks, Cilaly and Prissy as clowns

It was a hot and humid afternoon under the new roof of the old Happier Bus in Morelos where we had our first Kid's festival of Fun, called Festiniños. It appears all the 150 families we invited showed up to participate in the festival of fun. We told jokes, had games and gave out prizes for those brave enough to play along. We drew names for the Shoe Box Gifts due to an irregularity of age groups present to ensure fairness of all who were present getting a gift. Kool-aid and popcorn were given and smiles were exchanged as the day came to a close. Jeff Fredericks, his wife Allison, daughter Abigail, and son Nathan from Indiana were huge helpmates! Thanks for lending a hand guys! We believe everyone had a good time and the best thing that happened was a slew of children received Jesus into their hearts after a simple message with the Book without Words. God is good!

Most of the community came out to participate in our Kids' Festival of Fun.

Going home pleased with their gift boxes!

MARCH BEACH OUTREACH

Last month we loaded up in the Happiest Bus and the van and headed to the fishing village of La Barra for a children's outreach. We gave a brief talk on the importance of good hygiene and gave out deworming pills. Then we played games with the kids and gave them a goody bag as they departed with smiles. The youth had as much fun as being clowns as the kids enjoyed watching them. Manuel, shown at the bottom right, was carried and placed in the bus through the side door. His back bone is somehow fused together which keeps him from bending. Having fallen out of a tree as a youngster and never going to the doctor, he grew up in his bed never bending or using his legs. So now his legs have grown straight out and his back bent in a sitting position unable to bend. But a trooper he is! It was his first time to go to the beach! We planned to get baptized in April but got sick and was unable to be moved. So he will wait until the next available opportunity.

Two alcoholics, Andres and Israel, shown at the left, got saved after a Saturday outing witnessing to the men on the streets and began to come to church on a regular basis. Some members of the church cared for them through the detoxifying process. They both couldn't wait until next month to be baptized with the rest of the church, so in the water they went. PTL!
