

Building Blocks in Africa 2024 YEAR-END REVIEW

Kenya: Spring of Hope School for Girls

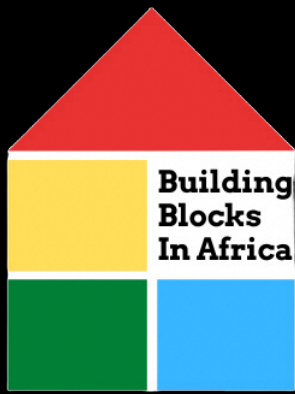

We are thrilled to announce that construction on the bathrooms and science block is complete. This includes modern, fully functioning bathrooms with a septic system, providing sanitary facilities for the students. The science block is equipped with gas hookups for lab stations, ensuring a state-of-the-art learning environment for science education.

Kitchen construction is currently underway and construction will begin soon on the first phase of staff quarters.

The community garden continues to thrive. Not only will it provide food for the school, but it also serves as a source of income for ongoing operations. This sustainable initiative is a vital part of ensuring the school's long-term success.

The school is on track to open its doors in January 2025. It will serve as a safe haven for young women of the Masai Tribe who would otherwise not have the opportunity to pursue secondary education.

Ghana

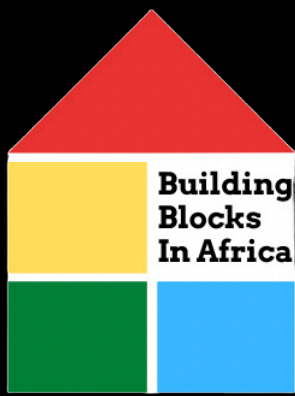

In Ghana, we are equally proud of the strides we've made in supporting the school, home, and community through creative sustainability projects. This year, we expanded on existing efforts and launched new ventures that are generating income and creating long-term impact.

With financial assistance from your donations Nana purchased a local cocoa farm. This farm will not only help generate income for the school and home but will also provide opportunities for the children at the home to learn new skills.

With your help, we funded the expansion of Jane's Bakery, which has allowed Jane to double her production. The bakery now employs three local staff, providing both economic support to the home and a steady source of income. Jane's Bakery fully supports the costs of running the home, ensuring that the children are cared for and the mission continues to flourish.

This model of sustainability is ensuring that the impact of our work in Ghana will continue to grow and benefit the community for years to come.
