

Instructions

Student work

A Game. Turn1

Dr. Yaverbaum · Jan 25 (Edited Jan 25)

5 points

Due Jan 27, 11:59 PM

Please submit a Document (not merely a comment) with at least ONE (1) remark, question or comment you contributed to today's discussion.

Your contribution might have been made via voice, via public chat, via direct chat, via screenshare, etc.

The Document can consist of one simple statement, one screenshot and/or the like.

Your submission can and should be extremely, extremely, short.

It might well take no more than 30 seconds of quiet recollection on your part to create and submit.

It might well take me no more than 30 seconds to check and return.

The document is meant to indicate just that:

a moment of self-reflection in which you recall some contribution you made toward today's class meeting.

But there must be some sort of document attached and turned in -- not merely a note sent to me via the comment section at the bottom of the screen.

Class comments

Add class comment...

Instructions

Student work

A Game. Multi-Player Co-Op

Dr. Yaverbaum · Jan 25

9 points

Due May 14, 11:59 PM

Please here submit a document reminding/noting one instance in which you constructively responded to a contribution made by one of your colleagues during class (with voice or in chat). Here, you must somehow use what your colleague said in order to advance our conversation a step further. You might answer a question that s/he raised, you might add support to a claim that s/he made, you might clarify for the rest of us what s/he meant, etc. Your reference to the colleague's contribution must honor and respect that colleague's -- even if it sensitively differs with some portion of the substance thereof. As long as you make respectful and affirming reference to your colleague's name, then Both you and the receiving colleague may submit the reference to this portal. EACH of you must make both names explicit in this portal and EACH of you must specify the instance clearly. EACH of you must make clear whether you were on the receiving end or the referring end of this collegial interchange.

Class comments

Add class comment...

Instructions

Student work

A Game. Be Wrong: Wreally Wreally Wrong.

Dr. Yaverbaum · Jan 25

11 points

Due May 14, 11:59 PM

Please here submit a document with your written record of one comment, conjecture, observation, hypothesis or similarly concrete claim which you offered in class today and to which I publicly responded with a description along the lines of "WRONG" "NOT RIGHT", "INCORRECT", "FLAWED", "FALSE", "MISTAKEN", "MISUNDERSTOOD", "NOT..." or "NO".

If you offer something gutsy and specific enough to warrant a clear non-affirmation from me, you deserve more points than I could ever describe, let alone credit to your academic account.

So in this portal, you'll receive 11.

Yes: "This one goes to 11."

Class comments

Add class comment...