Something's Missing in City Park Playground

Another piece of equipment failed in our salty air. First, the little tugboat was removed.

Now this past month, the metal dome that kids loved to hang from and climb, was pulled for safety issues.

The Park and Rec Commission wrote a grant this Spring to the Oregon Park and Rec Dept for a new dome. Let's hope they receive the funding for a new one.

Right now, the playground looks bare. But something is in the WIND!

Volunteer Mural Painters led by Vicki Affatatti

Here Vicki and her aspiring artists lay the foundation colors for the mural.

The mural is located on the North side of the restroom building in City Park. Stop by and admire our community work in action.

A Gift to Johnson Creek Greenway

Stillwater Natives Nursery is donating 50 Ninebark shrubs for Johnson Creek Greenway.

Darcy Grahek, owner of Stillwater Natives thinks October may be a good month for planting.

And yes, we will be asking for your planting help. It'll be fun, right?
