The terms of reference and responsibilities of National Codification Bureaux, users and contractors are specifically defined therein. Every nation has the responsibility to implement ACodP-1 rules and procedures.2 The application of those rules and procedures, as well as their harmonization with national regulations, is the responsibility of each National Codification Bureau, which is the final authority in this matter. NOTES 1.

Benefits to Government

- Opportunities for improvement of FLIS and the NATO Codification System through increased industry participation
 - Promotes FCS/NCS approach as an ISO standard
 - Lower cost of cataloging: Reduction of labor hours
 - Higher quality data through direct import of data from manufacturers catalogs
- Goal: Electronic transfer of descriptive data from our suppliers and manufacturers to NCBs
