Asking someone to draw a meme is the perfect ice breaker since they will be thinking about the subject matter while they are drawing it out. It's not like asking someone to draw something random on a piece of paper; you're getting them to think about something already on their mind. They should be laughing in the process, which will hopefully start an interaction between all the people at your party who are trying to come up with their own What Do You Meme card. Meme cards are a lot of fun! Especially if you love memes and pop culture references. There's even a What Do You Meme App you can use on your phone (and it's free!). But if you don't want to waste all that time on your phone, see below for the PDF version. I hope you and your friends have fun with the cards. It's a daily party in a box! I've always wanted to create a deck of cards, but to be honest it's really hard to pull off. Especially, when you have full time jobs and don't have extra time to do something like this. But I've managed to find the time and create these awesome cards that you can use for your own enjoyment or you can actually play a game with them (just follow the rules I have included in the PDF itself). Let's just be honest, you're going to want to finish the deck (no one wants to start from round two or three lol), so I suggest picking up one of those card binders so it looks super professional. You can usually find those at Target or Walmart for about $4 - $10.
