

Without our Volunteers, Where Would We Be?

LWCA depends on our volunteer Board of Trustees, Certified Pool Operator Mike Kurtas, and a host of residents who assist at our activities, but where would we be without Brian Banzaca???

Without a title or any direction, Brian quietly notices what needs to be done and does it. Examples? After several recent thunderstorms, he shows up early to assist guards with cleanup of debris before opening. He takes a torch to remove weeds from cement cracks. He purchases a water mister for the lifeguards who sat in their chairs on 100-degree days. He shows up with a chainsaw to cut up a fallen branch before someone gets hurt. He fixes an umbrella base. All while he works a fulltime job and greets everyone with a kind word.

Brian has saved our Swim Club thousands of dollars this year alone. (Methinks he owns every tool known to mankind.) When you see this remarkable guy, please acknowledge his dedication and service to our community!

Thank our Guards Too!

Our pool attendants went above and beyond this year. A few of them will be leaving this month for college so remember to extend your appreciation. Besides their daily assignments, LWCA guards worked many extra hours unpacking and arranging our new furniture, painting, and cleaning up after winter and our worst summer storms. Led by Manager Brian Quinlan, our guards leaving in August are Alyah Diab and Aaron Peralta, both returning to New Jersey Institute of Technology; and Jen Mazza, entering Rutgers College of Engineering. With us until Labor Day will be Alex Peralta, Jack Goldman, and Kaitlyn Mazza.

Many thanks to our guards for keeping our pools safe and sparkling, for general maintenance, adapting to our new photo ID entry system, and helping whenever they can. LWCA is fortunate to have these outstanding young people in our community.

Summer Night for Old and New Friends

On a perfect summer evening, LWCA members enjoyed friends, music, appetizers, amazing homemade desserts, and Jessica Oliveras' traditional Christmas (in July) beverage. Newcomers Ben Gelinas and Theresa Pham braved the pool that was warmer than the air! Join us for the next Adult Sip and Swim Night on Friday evening, September 4. Watch your email and Facebook for reminders.
