

Subject: Target Acquisition - Golden #17
From: operative_redacted@ngoslush.org
To: curlytail_ops@ngoslush.org
Date: April 3, 2009, 11:08 PM EST

CurlyTail,
K.v.H. greenlit Operation Puff. Target: Golden Retriever #17, "Puff," owned by J. Cortez, Argentina. Breeder intel says it's got peak genes—resilience, stamina, zero defects. We need it to anchor the doodle hybrids. Poodle DNA's glitchy—too much inbreeding, weak joints, neurotic yapping. #17's stock counters that. Snag it—quietly.

- [Redacted]
[Footer: "NGO Canine Futures - Phase 2"]

Subject: RE: Target Acquisition - Golden #17
From: curlytail_ops@ngoslush.org
To: operative_redacted@ngoslush.org
Date: April 4, 2009, 12:15 AM EST

[Redacted],
Puff's a champ—won some ribbon in '08, Cortez brags online. Poodle crosses tank without top-tier genes; last batch had curled tails and hip dysplasia—K.v.H. furious. I've got a team in Patagonia—kennel raid by week's end. Vet's ready to force-breed with our best poodle. Doodle craze starts here.

- CurlyTail
[Attachment: "puff_genetic_profile.pdf"]

Subject: RE: Target Acquisition - Golden #17
From: operative_redacted@ngoslush.org
To: curlytail_ops@ngoslush.org
Date: April 4, 2009, 12:22 AM EST

CurlyTail,
Good. #17's DNA is gold—literally. Poodle alterations amplify flaws—nervous wrecks, shedding worse than mutts. Cortez's dog fixes that; first litter must hit $1,500/pup by 2010. K.v.H. wants 10K doodles flooding yards by '12—make it happen. Wipe the trail—euthanize #17 after.

- [Redacted]
[Watermark: stopthepoodlehump.org/leak]