

Prophetic Declaration: Rejection is Replaced with Rejoicing

I declare in the name of Jesus Christ,
that every spirit of rejection that followed me from childhood, every lie that told me I was forgotten, unwanted, or not enough—is now broken by the blood of Jesus.

I am not invisible. I am not overlooked.
I am chosen, seen, known, and fully loved by God.
Where rejection tried to steal my voice,
joy is now rising from the ashes.
Where abandonment tried to shape my identity,
the truth of God's love now redefines me.

I declare that every wound of rejection is being healed and replaced with supernatural rejoicing.
I will no longer mourn over closed doors,
but I will dance through the open ones God has prepared for me.
I exchange the garment of heaviness
for the oil of gladness and the robe of praise.

I declare that I belong.
I am planted in the family of God.
I am surrounded by divine connections,
kingdom relationships, and covenant friendships that reflect heaven's love for me.

I rejoice because I am no longer the outsider.

I rejoice because I have been brought in.

I rejoice because what was once a source of pain is now a platform of purpose and power.

Rejection is under my feet.

Joy is my portion.

Acceptance is my inheritance.

And celebration is breaking out over my life,
because the Father calls me Beloved.

In Jesus' name, Amen
