

Heavenly Father, I come humbly before your throne.

I surrender my mind body will and emotions and declare that I am aligned with Heaven. From this day forward I declare that I will rise in the authority You have given me, and I take my stand against every spirit of weariness, discouragement, and disappointment that has tried to sit upon my life.

Your Word declares in Isaiah 40:31 that those who wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength. So today, Lord, I receive divine renewal. I reject heaviness, and I put on the garment of praise.

I bind and cast out every spirit assigned to drain my strength. Every assignment of delay that has produced disappointment, I break your power now in the name of Jesus. I refuse to be weary in well doing, according to Galatians 6:9, for my harvest is coming and it will not be stolen.

Father, release fresh oil upon me. Let the fire of the Holy Spirit burn away every residue of discouragement. Where my heart has been wounded by delay or unmet expectations, heal me now and restore my joy.

I declare:

My strength is returning.

My vision is being revived.

My spirit is rising again.

Every cloud of heaviness must scatter. Every whisper of defeat must be silenced. Every arrow of disappointment must fall to the ground powerless.

Lord, align me again with Your purpose. Breathe upon my calling.

Awaken boldness within me, just as You stirred Your servants in the book of Acts.

I decree that this season will not end in discouragement but in breakthrough, restoration, and divine momentum. Where I felt like giving up, I receive the strength to advance from the Holy Spirit.

I seal this prayer In Jesus' mighty name and by His blood,
Amen.
