The following principles and guidelines apply to Code of Conduct violations:

-Code violations that occur in meetings will be determined by the person chairing the meeting ("Chair"). Code violations that occur in the Association office or Common Areas will be determined by the person in charge of the Association office ("Office Manager") after consultation with the Board President. In the event that the Office Manager is in violation of the Code a written notice may be sent to the Board of directors via the corporate office of the Association Manager.

-If at a meeting Chair determines that a person is in violation of the Code, the Chair has the authority to ask the violating person to leave the meeting after being warned at least one time. Any Association member, Committee Member or Director asked to leave must abide by that request.

-Any person asked to leave a meeting is not permitted to return to the meeting they have been excused from. However, that person is not prohibited from attending later meetings unless otherwise so advised by the Board in writing.

-Any violation of the Code must be reported in writing to the Association within 7-days of the alleged violation. All such written notices must be sent directly to the office of the Association Manager.

-In the event that the Association Manager receives at least two written notices of a person violating the Code the Association Manager will forward such notices to the Board. The Board will at its discretion but within a reasonable time thereafter, investigate the alleged Code violations.

-If the Board determines that it has enough evidence to confirm the violation, the Board will notify the alleged violator in writing and provide the alleged violator with the opportunity to present written evidence on their behalf. If then after reviewing all of the evidence the Board determines that the alleged violation did occur, it may at its discretion impose appropriate penalties and removing the violator from any Association committees.

-Any member who has been prohibited from attending any meeting of the Association may send a person to represent them at such meetings. Such representative may not speak for the Association member unless the Association member has, at least 24 hours prior to the meeting, provided the Association with express written permission.
