Architectural plans sans sanctioned CLU being approved by Civic body

Commissioner News Service

Zirakpur: Growing population and its demand for urbanisation, and housing necessitate transaction and registration of altered use of land has to be preserved by the department of revenue. At times usage and purpose of land is catered to the higher govt department for their compilation, analysis, statistics and documentation. The "Change of Land Use" certificate is issued by the competent authority of State/UT government, at the requisition of land owner. The land owner has to urge for alteration of purpose of registered land, from farming to residential or commercial objectives after depositing govt fees. According to section(20)(3) of the Pb Apartment and property regulation Act (PAPRA) 1995. No registrar/sub registrar, under the registration act 1908 can register the sale deed for sale of land/ plot/ building for which necessary draft of govt processing fee, proof of land ownership, geographical location, and non encumbrance certificate are attached. The revenue department has to keep updating the the purpose of specific land under its usage. The revenue authorities would ensure no disruption in the area of conducive planning and legitimate execution by issuing requisite certification in connection with Change of land use compliances. Despite many efforts for seeking clarification on the Issue of CLU from the incumbent Executive officer, the call was not attended to.

Commissioner News Service

NEW DELHI : External Affairs minister S Jaishankar will represent India at the swearing-in ceremony of president-elect Donald Trump as the 47th US president, said the government in an announcement Sunday. The visit followed an invitation from the Trump-Vance Inaugural Committee. "During the visit, EAM will also have meetings with representatives of the incoming Administration, as also some other dignitaries visiting the US on that occasion," said the Ministry of External Affairs. The Trump inauguration will take place on January 20 and see for the first time in the US history the presence of foreign leaders at the oath-taking of a US president. Trump's team is reported to have so far invited Chinese President Xi Jinping, Italian PM Giorgia Meloni, Argentinian President Javier Milei and El Salvador leader Nayib Bukele to the event. While others are expected to participate, Xi is likely to send a high-level envoy to represent him, according to reports from Washington. Extraordinary sentence to President elect Donald Trump is 'unconditional discharge'

Commissioner News Service

New York : Notwithstanding the President-elect gets an unconditional discharge, he will become the first President of the U.S. to be sentenced as a felon. Mr. Trump said the hearing had been a "despicable charade" and that he planned to appeal his conviction. New York State Judge Juan Merchan sentences U.S. President-elect Donald Trump as he appears remotely for a sentencing hearing at New York Criminal Court in Manhattan in New York City on January 10, 2025 in this courtroom sketch. |President-elect

Donald Trump was sentenced on Friday (January 10, 2025) in his hush money case, but the judge declined to impose any punishment, an outcome that cements his conviction while freeing him to return to the White House unencumbered by the threat of a jail term or a fine. The punishment-free judgment marks a quiet end to an extraordinary case that for the first time put a former President and major presidential candidate in a courtroom as a criminal defendant.

Los Angeles faces pile of ashes, rubbles

Commissioner News Service

Los Angeles : Firefighters continue to battle a series of major wildfires that have killed at least five people in the Los Angeles area of United States' California. Officials are hoping the firefighters would make progress in controlling the blazes as ferocious winds that drove the flames were not expected to be "as powerful" during the day. A new fire began near the West Hills neighbourhood of Los Angeles on Thursday afternoon, leading to more evacuations. The fire department has issued orders for the "Kenneth Fire." According to Sheriff Robert Luna of the Los Angeles County, officials plan to a curfew around the two major fires that would be in place from 6 pm on Thursday until 6 am the next day. The curfews will only affect the "heavily impacted" areas, Luna said, adding that authorities were looking primarily at the mandatory evacuation zones. Los Angeles County fire chief Anthony Marrone said the Eaton area fire has destroyed over 4,000 structures, including homes, apartment buildings, commercial buildings or even vehicles. President Joe Biden called these "the worst fires ever to hit Los Angeles" and declared having approved additional funding for California. National Basketball Association (NBA) postponed the Los Angeles Lakers' home game against the Charlotte Hornets on Thursday.

Restructured MSP can encourage sustainable farming

Farmer cooperatives have shown promise in providing market stability and better bargaining power for small farmers. These cooperatives can be leveraged to aggregate produce, negotiate better prices and reduce dependency on middlemen. While government intervention is crucial in determining MSP for crops, a collaborative approach that includes private sector involvement in procurement could alleviate the financial load on public systems. Incentivising private companies through tax benefits to procure products at or above MSP can enhance market competitiveness and opportunities for farmers. This model has seen success in the contract farming system in Thailand, where private companies provide guaranteed prices to farmers, ensuring stable incomes. Examples from countries like Israel and the Netherlands illustrate how cooperative models can significantly enhance the profitability and sustainability of farming communities. In Israel, cooperative societies like Thnava have helped farmers secure better market access and fairer prices through collective marketing and distribution networks. The urgent need for MSP reform is clear.

Environmental issues and farmer discontent demand prompt action. By diversifying the MSP system, we can transform agriculture into a more resilient and prosperous sector. A restructured MSP would broaden safety nets and encourage sustainable practices, empowering farmers to thrive amidst challenges. It can create a balanced agricultural ecosystem where farmers are protected, markets are efficient and food security is assured for future generations. The minimum support price (MSP) system was a significant policy intervention for ensuring food security and protecting farmers from market fluctuations. However, it has begun to show limitations and is now a source of unrest among farmers. Its narrow focus on a few crops has drawn criticism as today's agricultural challenges are evolving, with rising costs, ecological concerns and the need for viable alternatives. The MSP system can successfully stabilised wheat and paddy production, it inadvertently discouraged crop diversification, leaving farmers vulnerable to market volatility and climate impacts. The demand for reform is escalating, with farmers advocating for a legal MSP framework that encompasses a broader range of crops, backs sustainability and enhances economic security. Opponents of an expanded MSP, argue that such a system is impractical and financially unsustainable for the government, which they believe should not be obligated to purchase all crops. They argue for a more liberated agricultural market, similar to other economic sectors. There is no demand requiring government purchases at MSP. Yet, it is crucial that MSP serves as a price floor — ensuring market prices do not drop below it. Reforming the MSP to align with free-market principles requires creative thinking from policy makers, economists and legal experts. A promising approach is the establishment of a diversified MSP. Expanding coverage beyond wheat and paddy to include pulses, oilseeds, millets and horticultural produce would create a more inclusive and dynamic system, responsive to farmers' needs. This will not only secure farmers financially but also promote sustainable practices. For instance, millets need less water than paddy, making them ideal for drought-prone areas, while pulses can enrich soil quality.

However, the MEA is yet to take cognisance of this matter. Articles of the city heritage are being auctioned regularly in foreign countries without any resistance from the Government of India, he added. He requested that the Indian Embassies in foreign countries must be sensitised about our heritage, so that they can, at least, raise objection, which may sustain or not, to save the heritage. The Ministry of Home Affairs has prohibited the sale, export and shifting of furniture items of Chandigarh. How these reached foreign countries is a matter of investigation.
