Remembering Michael A. Musto, ME1, '52-55

Emails from shipmates:

The Musto I knew (and think his name was Michael) was an Edisto crew member when I came aboard Jan. 58 & think still there when I transferred off July 59, and I really wrote the following assuming this was him, this before I noticed the service dates you show in Subject line. If this is the Musto I knew, the following is applicable. If not, it applies to a different Musto than the one who just passed away. Anyway, were you on the Edisto when we were up north the summer of '58, somewhere off Labrador or Baffin Island when it seemed there was some problem with the ship's steering, propulsion, both, or some such. They thought it might be one of the screws chipped, chunk knocked out of it, somehow broken so put ladder over side & Musto went down it and on the ice and walked back to the stern where he got down on his belly on ice in attempt to inspect the propeller. He was really concentrating on his inspection, trying to discover problem, and could not see this old polar bear (and believe she had cubs with her) walking up to come over to inspect Musto stretched out on the ice. Bunch of us were out on deck watching him and we saw what all going on, started yelling at him, but he wasn't hearing us. Forgot how finally got his attention, if someone threw something down & hit him or what, but when finally got his attention & he saw that bear approaching him, he made it back to that ladder midships one hell of a lot faster than he made it from that spot to the stern when he was going out. When going out he was walking rather carefully on the ice but when getting back from that bear he was pretty well running. If you remember or knew him, Musto wasn't very tall and you never saw two little short legs moving so fast as those were at that time. I remember that about Musto more than any one thing, and over the years have told that tale so often; in fact, this past Thurs. was with friends visiting this really neat taxidermy shop where they had a stuffed black & a stuffed brown bear and I told these friends & the taxidermist that tale about Musto & the polar bear. Thanks for doing the great job you do, Glenn, in keeping us informed of unfortunate passing of all Edisto crew members. It's especially sad, but something one particularly wants to know, when it involves a shipmate. My sympathy to the Musto family. Take care. Keep up the good work & keep in touch.

Jim Oliphant.

I remember Mike very well. He was a super guy who always had a smile on his face and a pleasant word for everyone.....even us Deck Apes. I agree with Jim regarding his years on the Edisto. I'm pretty sure he was on board during Operation Deep Freeze I. That would have been 1955 going into 1965. I'll have to write David Musto as to how old Mike was when he passed. I was 20 for Deep Freeze and I thought Mike was much older than me and I'm 72 now. Of course, at 20, everyone seems a lot older than you.

Val Patarini

Mike Musto was on the Edisto when I reported on in '56. He was the first one to go upon the stack when there was a stack fire. I believe what James Oliphant was referring to was when Mike and a couple of others went over to repair a hole in the USNS Mission Los Angeles. I do remember that we fed the polar bear for a few days. He ate better than we did. It also kept him away from the guys so they could finish the repair work on the ship. Sorry to hear of his passing. Sorry to hear of all the passings of all the people that I knew.

Al Hudson

Dear Glenn:

RM1 Jesse Lee Turner passed away on Sunday, August 19, 2007. He was 81 years old. He was buried on August 21, 2007, with full military honors, at the National Cemetery in Biloxi, Mississippi. He was always proud of his service with the USS Edisto. Please let his crew mates know and you may remove this e-mail address from your records

MAIL BAG

First official Reunion - Shipmate David Collins sent me the Call to Reunion letter and a roster for the first official reunion of the USS Edisto that was held September 27, 1997. This reunion was orchestrated by Lyman Smith, and was held at the home of Rod and Kathleen Whitelaw, Orleans, MA. Those invited or were in attendance were:

Lyman & Barbara Smith, '62-64
 Rod & Kathy Whitelaw, '62-64
 David & Holly Collins, '64-65
 Walt & Frances Flaherty, '63-64
 Frank & Ginny Hanson, '64-65
 Ed & Benth Johnson, '63
 Norval & Clare Nickerson, '63-65

Rudd & Barbara Platt, '62-64
 Rich & Linda Pribula, '63-64
 Joseph Kellogg, '62-65
 Daryl Feckley, '63-65
 John Power, '63-64
 John Hagen, '63-65
 Wadsworth McDaniel, '63-65

Dave said also that he and wife Holly made 2 trips to the Antarctic where they sailed the Ross Sea and visited McMurdo during the winter of 2003/2004.

John Hrivnak, '51-55, is asking if any of you shipmates recall the Edisto basketball team and if so, he wants a copy of the photo taken of the team. He lost his in a flood in '72.

The Association now boasts 268 active members with 76 new members registering since the publication of our first newsletter, the Kee Bird. Fantastic! As a member you receive a Certificate, a CD for use on a computer that contains Assn files, latest membership roster, Deepfreeze cruise books and more.

Received a note and donation from Carol Spruill in memory of Charter Member Norm. Carol says she will continue to be an active member of our group. Also received a note from Charli, widow of Charter Member and Plank Owner Vernon Clark. She too plans to remain active in our group.

Several orders for hats and shirts were filled recently. Interest increased since the Kee Bird publication and distribution in Oct 2007. I discovered an error in shirt pricing because I used the old price list from our purchases in 2004 for the first reunion in Charleston, SC. It would seem that since then the shirts have gone up about to about $28-30 each.

Cost comparison of the last 2 reunions versus the upcoming reunion in May and is based on a person attending all catered meals and participating in all tours

Naval Station Norfolk

Naval Station Norfolk occupies about 3,400 acres of Hampton Roads real estate in a peninsula known as Sewells Point. It is the world's largest Naval Station; in fact, based on supported military population, it is the largest military station in the world. The Norfolk Naval Base (NNB) is located on 4,631 acres, directly northwest of the City of Norfolk, Virginia. The Naval Complex includes Norfolk Naval Base as well as other Naval Facilities of the Sewells Point Naval Complex.

When the 78 ships and 133 aircraft home ported here are not at sea, they are alongside one of the 14 piers or inside one of the 15 aircraft hangars for repair, refit, training and to provide the ship's or squadron's crew an opportunity to be with their families. Naval Station is homeport to aircraft carriers, cruisers, destroyers, large amphibious ships, submarines, and a variety of supply and logistics ships. Port Services controls more than 3,100 ships' movements annually as they arrive and depart their berths. Port facilities extend more than four miles along the waterfront and include some seven miles of pier and wharf space.

Naval Station's Nimitz Hall is a major stopping-off point for people destined for ships, aircraft squadrons, and stations overseas. Nearly 9,000 people are processed through the Transient Personnel Unit annually en route to their destinations.

It is uncommon for these ships to all be in port at one time. Naval Station Norfolk made history with the berthing of five (5) Nuclear Aircraft Carriers on 02 July 97 at 1730, when the Navy's newest Nimitz class carrier, USS JOHN C. STENNIS (CVN-74), returned to port, joining the USS GEORGE WASHINGTON (CVN-73), USS THEODORE ROOSEVELT (CVN-71), USS ENTERPRISE (CVN-65) and the USS DWIGHT D. EISENHOWER (CVN-69). The only other time five carriers were berthed at the Naval Station was in 1992, but they were not all nuclear carriers.
