From the Pastor's Heart

Spiritual Trick or Treat

Trick or Treat has evolved into a nice fun outing for children. They dress up in costumes get their little buckets and parade around the neighborhood going door to door to collect delicious treats in the form of packaged candies. While it has not always been the case, the Tricking part of Trick or Treat does not exist today. Even if you run out of candy, the late arriving kids and their parents are not very likely to play a trick on you. It's just not worth taking a chance on getting arrested by the police. Halloween Tricks are more likely to take the form of vandalism, where stupid kids ride around damaging mailboxes with baseball bats or throwing eggs on houses. Despite the innocence of children dressed in ghoulish costumes Halloween still has an ungodly feel to me, a sort of celebration of spiritual darkness and evil. Churches are trying to redeem and recast the tradition by creating Trunk-or-treat events. Church members park their cars in the church parking lot and pack treats in their trunks. Parents bring their Children dressed in costumes to the location where the children go trunk to trunk gathering goodies instead of door to door. Some churches combine trunk or treat with harvest festival celebrations or Hallelujah Nights.

Having four grandchildren who will be trick or treating inspired me to think about the deeper spiritual aspect of the Halloween Holiday and its Trick or Treat tradition. In many ways Satan is knocking at the door of our hearts and challenging us to play Trick or Treat with our souls. Whether we accept it as true or not Satan wants a treat from us. He wants us to give him the pleasure of seeing us commit sin. Satan says: "Treat me by sinning against your neighbors to protect yourself. Treat me by sinning to enrich yourself at the expense of others. Treat me with a sinful attitude of hatred toward others. Treat me by developing a disobedient attitude toward God or even better, let's see you become a rebel who fights God and His church." These sins are treats to Satan, he gobbles them up like kids eating chocolate candy bars and then he licks his lips in joy and asks for more.

On the other hand, if you refuse to give Satan his sinful treats, he will play hurtful tricks on your soul. Satanic tricks are no more that spiritual temptations. The basic structures of Satan's temptations are: If you do wrong you will receive a benefit. If you commit a sin, you will be rewarded. Satan always dresses up his Tricks with the idea that the people you hurt do not matter or the people you hurt deserve to be hurt for what they or their ancestors have done in the past. Another deceptive lie Satan uses to dress up his tricks is: "don't worry God understands. He lies to you and says: "God knows you had to do this for your benefit." He whispers in your ear, "don't worry everything is going to be alright, no one will ever find out or know what you did."

Sometimes Satan customizes his tricks just for you. Here is the key, remember this: Satan is aware of your most aggravating issues. He knows how you feel about the most irritating people in your life. He is aware of the details involved in the most difficult issues you are facing in your career and personal life. Satan is aware of your most desirable experiences, your most egotistical goals, and your deepest hurts. Yes, Satan is aware of all these factors and with his lowdown dirty self, he packages his Tricks with not just one, or two, of these irritating factors but with combinations of three or more of them. He does not just hit you in your weakest area, he throws combinations. For example, Satan will take your anger and combine it with an opportunity to take advantage of someone. He will take your lust and combine it with your need for money, need I go on.

Remember Satan does not limit his spiritual trick or treats to Halloween, he works at it (24/7/365) twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week, three hundred sixty-five days a year. Satan never takes time off, but you can shut him up and you can drive him away, if you do what the Bible teaches us to do.

First memorize and make it your practice when you sense or feel negativity toward other people and/or God to say to yourself: “He that is within me is greater than he that is in the world” (Based upon 1 John 4:4 (NRSV) Little children, you are from God, and have conquered them; for the one who is in you is greater than the one who is in the world.)

Second memorize and make it your practice when you feel tempted to say to yourself: “Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Draw near to God and he will draw near to you.” (Based upon James 4:7-8: Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil, and he will flee from you. Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, you sinners, and purify your hearts, you double-minded.)

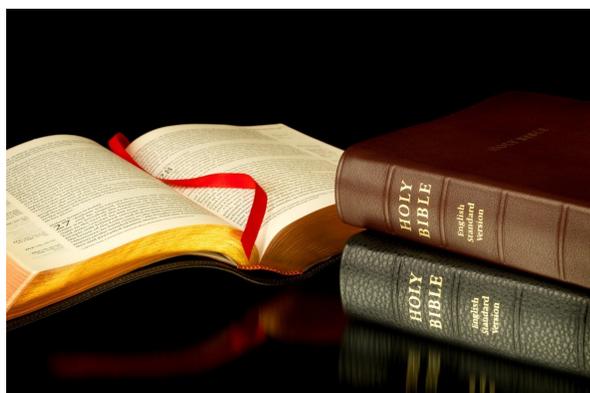

Third memorize and make it your practice when you feel something is not quite right or truthful to say to yourself: “The devil is a liar, and the truth is not in him.” (Based upon John 8:44 (NRSV) .You are from your father the devil, and you choose to do your father's desires. He was a murderer from the beginning and does not stand in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he lies, he speaks according to his own nature, for he is a liar and the father of lies.)

Instead of needlessly playing Trick or Treat with the Devil, feast on God’s Word daily. Invest a little time and effort into growing Spiritually. Your return on investment will enrich your soul, strengthen your walk and give you unspeakable joy.

Have a Great November!

Yours in Christ,

Pastor Spencer

All we like sheep have gone astray; we have turned—every one—to his own way; and the LORD has laid on him the iniquity of us all.
Isaiah 53:6

Behold, I am sending you out as sheep in the midst of wolves, so be wise as serpents and innocent as doves.
Matthew 10:16

<https://www.openbible.info/topics/shepherds>

My sheep hear my voice, and I know them, and they follow me.
John 10:27

And I have other sheep that are not of this fold. I must bring them also, and they will listen to my voice. So there will be one flock, one shepherd.

Where Have We Gone

Since the pandemic more of our ministries will likely be online than those who just “want everything to go back to normal” might hope. The church as virtual messenger leaps over barriers of physical distance. Congregations can join for worship. Far-away speakers can lead workshops. Perspectives can be shared across the miles. But there is another dynamic at work even before the pandemic and the sudden inability to interact face to face provoked momentous disruption in the education, retail, hospitality, and entertainment.

The continued decline in worship attendance across all faith denominations has been on the rise for the last several years and conflict seems to be one of the root causes. Someone shared with me a story about interviewing a person for an open position in their congregation. “So, what interests you in this position at our church?” “Well,” she replied, “I’ve worked in an office for several years now, and I’m honestly just sick and tired of how people can treat each other so terribly, so when I saw this position advertised, I thought, ‘Wow, wouldn’t it be great to work in a place where everybody always gets along for a change!’” She must have never read St. Augustine’s daily prayer from the 5th century “Lord, save us from the forces of evil and from all these Christians.”

Conflict damages or destroys teams, ministries, missions, vibrancy — occurs when we as the people of God forget who we are, why we’re here, and where we’re going in carrying out the mission. Yes, people disagree, even in the church. Indeed, whenever “two or three are gathered” in Jesus’s name, it seems like there’s bound to be a fight. Yet when we begin to focus more on ourselves — our needs, our preferences — and less on the wants, needs, and preferences of our sisters and brothers in faith, not to mention those we are trying to reach with the gospel, the ensuing conflicts can be deadly for a congregation. Faithful followers of Jesus understand conflict as an opportunity to remember who they are in Christ, why they’re here, and where they’re going on their mission.

Churches are the heartbeat of their communities and neighborhoods. The preferred site of weddings and funerals, they offer spiritual community and support to people in transition. They are extremely important institutions in small towns — as essential as the gas station, grocery store, bank, hospital, and post office. Successfully leading through conflict toward a transformative end will always bear exponential dividends, empowering a congregation’s witness within its community and beyond.

Our job is not to resolve conflict. Our job is to develop healthier ways for our congregation to carry out our mission of making disciples of Jesus Christ and showing our neighbors that love can, in fact, transform the world. Conflicts are contexts within which that equipping, and discipling can take place.
