

Sharon's Sensational Stories February Edition

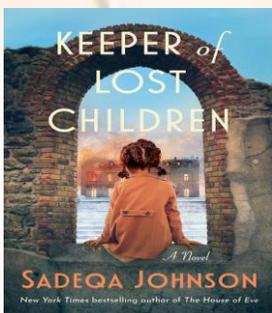

Coming To The Library Company Of Burlington In February

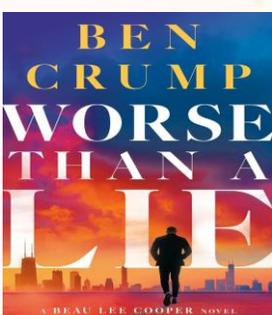

In a dazzling series of lectures from her tenure as a professor at Princeton University, Toni Morrison interrogates America's most famous works and authors, drawing a direct line from the Black bodies that built a nation to the Black characters that many of the country's canonical white writers imagined in their work.

Leigh is the last of the Wildes. She knows because she watched them all die. Grief never truly fades and even as the tragedy haunts her, Leigh carries on, because survival is in her blood. So, when the transport bus taking her to prison careens off the road, killing everyone onboard except her, she does what's in her nature. She survives.

Ethel Gathers, the proud wife of an American Officer is living in Occupied Germany in the 1950s. After discovering a local orphanage filled with abandoned mixed-race children of German women Black American GI's, Ethel feels compelled to help find these children homes.

It's the night of November 4, 2008. America's first black president has just been elected. And fifty-three year-old Hollis Montrose – a black ex-police officer from the suburbs of Chicago – has become the latest victim of a brutal attack. As the result of a traffic stop gone wrong, Hollis is shot ten times in cold blood, by four white men who could have been his colleagues back in his police days.
