

5 REASONS TO CONTACT A SENIOR LIVING ADVISOR

A senior living advisor is someone who guides individuals and their families through the process of finding the best housing and care options for their needs and budget

You are in a hurry to make a decision

Senior Living Advisors usually work at no cost to the family. Usually they are paid by the senior communities whenever their referrals move in. The benefits of enlisting the help of a Senior Living Advisor are that it can save you time and money.

You want to work with someone one-on-one to make decisions

A Senior Living Advisor will accompany you on visits to places that meet your criteria, ensure that all your questions are answered, and assist with paperwork and negotiations. They are by your side every step of the way.

The situation is complicated

An advocate can be a good friend to have on your side, especially when things get complicated. Sometimes there is so much information being offered that it is nearly impossible to hold it alone and sort out what you have been told. As your advocate and coach, A Senior Living Advisor will do their best to ensure that everyone understands information being dispensed and that your questions are answered appropriately.

Many people are involved in the decision process

A 3rd party who is outside the emotional landscape of the family during tough decision making can be a great benefit. Each family has its own dynamic and a coach can help make sure everyone is heard and seen, and that everyone is treated fairly, even if you don't all agree. Senior Living Advisors are well trained to empower families to move forward with whatever process is most beneficial and hopefully find consensus.

The options feel overwhelming

There are so many options; the terminology is often unfamiliar and the terrain unknown. A Senior Living Advisor will streamline the process to make it easier for you to make informed choices and reduce the stress associated with such important decisions. It can be comforting to have someone partner with you who is: doing research, talking to providers, organizing paperwork, a go-to person you can turn to when things get overwhelming.
