Architectural Photography Services

Architectural photography is so much more than simply capturing the standard "product" shots. While these documentary shots are necessary, in most shoots, in order to capture the overall essence of the project for the various marketing and sales purposes, the true Architectural Photographer will then go beyond the ordinary, using their own creative vision to capture a completely different perspective of the project. As a practicing Architect, Robert Jordan understands the soul of a building and uses this perspective to see, and capture, a creative viewpoint that may not be obvious to others. As an active Outdoor Photographer as well, his unique vision of light, angles, shapes and forms, from the natural world, colors his creative vision in Architectural Photography. We can be commissioned for virtually any type of architectural shoot, for Architects, Contractors, Real Estate Professionals, Developers, Corporate Clients, and Private Clients. We shoot all project types, both interior and exterior, and can capture simple sales and marketing shots, editorial shots for magazines and other publications, and abstract/ fine art shots. We primarily utilize digital medium format equipment for superior results.
