Dear Shashi Ji,

I am so impressed by your large heartedness, generosity and resilience in these challenging times. I could not help but write how I feel about you extending yourself to the community at large without thought to distance, cost and inconvenience. You live in one extreme part of the county and are extending yourself to whoever is in need anywhere in the county. You are one of a kind. While people are complaining about being stranded at home, trying to pleasure themselves with online and Zoom activities, being depressed about how long this is going to last— you are running around and reaching out to the needy, at a certain risk to yourself.

Your actions are a real test of humanity and sacrifice which is part of your nature. The world needs more people like you. May you always be safe and healthy.

God Bless you.

With regards and best wishes,

Kiran Varma
