About the Contributors

Adrienne Foreman is a doctoral candidate in the Department of English at Texas A&M University in College Station. She is also working on a Women's Studies Certificate in the Women and Gender Studies Department. Her areas of interest within twentieth century American fiction are popular culture, film, disability studies, and gender. Her dissertation analyzes how the body and identification function within recent detective texts involving disabilities.

Amanda Landa is a PhD Candidate at University of Texas Austin. She is currently writing her dissertation on Japanese youth culture and film genres.

Karen J. Renner is a Lecturer at Northern Arizona University. She recently edited a collection entitled The "Evil Child" in Literature, Film, and Popular Culture (Routledge, 2012) and is currently at work on two books, Perverse Subjects: Drunks, Gamblers, and Prostitutes in Antebellum America and Bad Seeds and Injured Innocents: The Evil Child in the Contemporary Imagination.
