

Sherri Goodall, the CEO of Full Circle Marketing, LLC, has been consistently building a marketing agency that delivers impeccable marketing and branding strategies to career professionals who are invested in new business ventures. She is an international seminar trainer and speaker.

Sherri Goodall believes in communicating a business message and educating the world with accessible and relatable information in everything that she does. She's masterful at creating online marketing strategies and communicating in your brand voice to reach your target market. Ms. Goodall thrives in fast-paced, creative work environments while bringing exceptional communication and people skills. In her previous role with a national retail chain, she was responsible for managing a quarter-million-dollar budget that helped to optimize company visibility and awareness through digital marketing, influencer marketing activations, content production, and more. Sherri has a track record of bringing recognition to the leadership of B2B and B2C relationships. Her multitude of strategies and clarity of message contributes to her client's bottom line by saving them valuable time and money.

With over 20 years of marketing experience backed by a BBA in Marketing and an MS in Internet Marketing, Sherri brings energetic confidence and creativity to her work. It is her life-long love as a learner and reader through which Sherri diligently seeks out the best new books, podcasts, blogs, articles, and conferences so she can bring the most up-to-date resources and information to her clients.

In November 2017, this proud single mom blazed a path for professional women seeking second act careers when she decided to leave her job to build a life she loves and her own marketing agency just as she was soon to turn fifty. Sherri is excited about sharing her story showing you how to go from nine to thrive and.

You can find Sherri on all social media and as the. Host of the I Am Sherri Goodall podcast and YouTube series