

Sofia Santiago

As a bilingual speaker, trainer, and award-winning author, Sofia Santiago is known internationally for her fun and engaging delivery. She is an expert in male-female communication, interpersonal attraction, and conflict management.

In 2020, Sofia was recognized by Fox News as a Remarkable Woman because of “the tremendous difference she has made in self-achievement and community contribution.” The Fox News award “celebrates women who inspire, lead, and forge the way for other women,” and that’s exactly what Sofia has devoted her life to doing.

Sofia’s Amazon best-seller, “Difficult Conversations Just for Women: Kill the Anxiety. Get What You Want.” is an award-winner at the 2016 Reader’s Favorite International Literary Excellence Book Contest, was presented with a Five Stars Seal Award by Reader’s Favorite, and has been highly praised by Publishers Weekly, Missouri Life Magazine, and others. Sofia donates 25% of the profits from her books’ sales to a maternity home for homeless pregnant girls and to a shelter for battered women.

Sofia is the founder of Pathways Business Seminars, and in the past 15 years she’s trained thousands of employees of Microsoft, the U.S. Air Force, Conoco, Hyatt, Purina, Graceland University, and many other organizations. A former university professor, Sofia is a cybernetics engineer with graduate studies in business and intercultural communication, and she’s working on her Ph.D. in Business Ethics. Sofia lives in the middle of nowhere, Missouri, with her husband John (who makes killer spaghetti) and a dumb dog she calls Dumb Dog.
