Pgh Tribune – Review

Mary Pompeo, of Aspinwall, said the $1200 she pays annually for her two children now is probably less than what she paid when she had to take hours off work, drive to the North Side, and fork over a $20 co-payment for every illness or injury. Pompeo's children – Maria, 16 and Anthony, 13 -- both play several sports and are frequent visitors of Serbin's. "He comes to the house. He goes out of his way," Pompeo said. "It's the kind of attention that you always wish you could get but think you never will."

Pgh Post-Gazette

Dr. Don Fischer, Medical Director at Highmark, (In an article about Dr. Serbin) "He's an outstanding Pediatrician."

At Home With Jennifer

"From a patient's perspective, it's hard to beat that kind of dedicated physician. It's a Pediatrician essentially at your beck and call - - that's wonderful care." - - Basil Zitelli, M.D., Chief, Diagnostic Referral Group, Children's Hospital of Pittsburgh.

Pgh Tribune – Review

Reika Becker of Oakland...called Serbin "a great, great doctor,"..."I understand that nowadays it's difficult for doctors to do what they want to do with patients".

Pediatric News

He (Dr. Serbin) said that his new practice resembles old-time medicine, a total doctor-patient relationship. "I know my patients intimately, I'm really a part of their lives, instead of being an assembly-line doctor."

N.Y. Times

Dr. Don Fischer, the Chief Medical Officer at Highmark Blue Cross Blue Shield in Pittsburgh and a cardiologist, said that one of his pediatric patients received a house call by his concierge pediatrician (Dr. Serbin) on Easter Sunday. The child, who had a heart problem, received a diagnosis of endocarditis. Dr. Fischer attributes the accurate off-hour diagnosis to the child's getting immediate treatment.
