

Aviato Members
United States of America
The Culture War is Coming for Your Team:

Dear My Fellow League Members,

Good afternoon, everybody. Good afternoon. Uh, 15 percent up year on year? Well, it's a shame we're up 40 on costs, but I guess... I guess it evens itself out in the end. I'm going to be spending a lot more time in here with you lot, because I love it in here. So fucking spicy! Luke, you are a fucking pirate!

First and foremost, this is the best league on the planet. Despite its flaws and numerous takeover attempts by the nasty deep state, the patriotic members of this amazing institution continually fight to preserve the rights of all members.

Recently, the mainstream media misused my words and silenced my message in the name of "editorial clarity". As a result of this corruption, which also stole an election and commissionership from under my feet, I have decided to release fair and balanced power rankings. Commissioner Scotty, God Bless you. Without your guidance, this league would be overwhelmed by corruption. Without any further ado, the true, unfiltered, patriotic power rankings:

1. Sauce Twins – Fantastic owners. They both love God, Country, and Family. They embrace the Saudi personality and carry a completely alpha mentality over the league. This team lives rent free in every other team's head regarding free agent bidding. Although this is the best team at the moment, there is no possibility for it to win the championship with Mr. Pfizer on the roster. Also, the Aviato deep state is FUMING over a potential outsider making a deep playoff run. If Max gets indicted for fraud and Frank gets poisoned enjoying cold beer, then look no further than Aviato's version of the Clinton Foundation. Either way, early round playoff exit.
2. Make Marucci Great Again – Unbelievable work by Luke this year. This team should easily be 4-0, but the deep state has created an unfair schedule that has resulted in 605.46 points against. The rest of the league should take note; the only thing between these evil forces doing the same to you is Marucci's protection. There is no doubt Luke and I take home the Copa this year.
3. Wambsgans Royco – The team's grit is second to none. Its wins may not be glamorous, but at the end of the day, a win is a win. This team's durability is light years ahead of any other member. The owner's strength to avoid vaccines and provide pure blood to the team will provide energy that no one has seen before. The only thing that could stop this league from playing Marucci in the championship is if Bijan gets caught playing the skin flute and runs off to Portland to join the rest of the Antifa fudge packers. Deep playoff run, at least to the semifinals.
4. Good Bull – Although he might not be part of the deep state, this team's owner is definitely sympathetic to them. This baby flesh powered team makes my stomach turn in a knot. Although I do not appreciate the method, I must recognize the results. Kirk Cousins has carried this team to a strong record and will surely lead it into the playoffs if he is not assassinated by some leftist radical. However, I predict the team to collapse at the end of the season and limp into the playoffs as a 5 seed. Early playoff exit incoming.
5. Sting Like a B – If corruption had a mascot, this team would be it. Eight years of dictatorship rule, and one would think we would have seen more rings on this team's finger. The team has strong playoff chances due to the ability of its owner to bend the law and rape the small market owners of this league. Although, it should be wary because that patriot (Scott) in the league office is the new Sheriff in town. Early playoff exit.

6. Im not Fucking Leaving – This team should be number one after an amazing draft. It's owner has done the impossible by becoming the best commissioner in Aviato history while also managing a competitive team. However, it should be no surprise that the deep state sabotaged his team by knocking out its first two picks and forcing a rough start. However, Scotty's faith and patriotism will lead the team to an unprecedented comeback, edging it into the playoffs. This is not a team you want to face in the playoffs. Deep playoff run, and possible championship appearance.
7. Love is the Answer – First team out of the playoffs. It is unfortunate but not surprising based on the nasty media narratives and rhetoric that was written about Marucci and Luke over the last few years. Although I do not agree with your fantasy football politics, I respect the effort and media platform you have created for the league. It is tragic that you could not use your strengths to rid the league from the deep state. Instead, you have sold out and protected it for many years. I am aware that one of the teams ranked ahead will not make the playoffs because your team likely will win its division, creating a mandatory playoff berth. Regardless, early playoff exit.
8. Team of Frauds – It was difficult to drop this team to number eight, but it has not produced strong offensive numbers. It's record is likely an anomaly, and it is a strong possibility that the team only wins 1-2 more games this season. There is great ownership at the top of this team, and it knows what it takes to win. However, this is likely a rebuilding year.
9. Bean and Cheese #1 – Another tough ranking for a team that won two previous championships. For full transparency, I am bitter that this team put up nearly 200 points and sent Marucci down to .500. This team is a pawn for the deep state, which is a shame, because I have a feeling ownership sold its soul to win those two championships. Jalen Hurts is a Marucci god, and we are proud that he got a ring last season with you.
10. Starfucker FC – It is extremely difficult to see this team fall so far from grace. Its ownership had an opportunity to thrust this team into becoming a top three team this season. The deep state had other plans and hypnotized the ownership of this team during the unfair commissioner election. However, I have faith in the future of this franchise. It has surely learned its lesson, and, going forward, it will be nothing short of patriotic and avoid the deep state like the plague.
11. Daddy's Juice – The pain associated with ranking this team is indescribable. Daily operations are a shit show and line ups are often not set. Ownership reminds me of Jim Irsay, minus the painkillers. But in some eyes, this team is currently winning in different terms. It is run a man that only attracts the most beautiful, busty, and patriotic bartenders. Rob, I love you and keep doing you. 3 wins on the field but infinite wins at the local watering hole.
12. The Fighting Dan Campbells – I love you as a friend, brother, and lifelong mistress, but I fucking hate you as a fantasy football commissioner. This team will likely win last place for the second year in a row, bringing the well-deserved shame that should be associated with the atrocities you have committed in the League Managers' office. This team warrants nothing but hell. You represent evil, corruption, and secrecy that the patriots of this league have fought so hard against. Every loss you endure this season is justified and should bring you great pain. I predict two wins MAX this season. But the minute you step outside of Aviato, you are nothing but class and a great partner.

God bless this league and God bless each one of you.

Nicholas Khater
Former Commissioner of Aviato