RULE 57 COSTS OF PROCEEDINGS

General Principles

Factors in Discretion

57.01 (1) In exercising its discretion under section 131 of the Courts of Justice Act to award costs, the court may consider, in addition to the result in the proceeding and any offer to settle or to contribute made in writing,

(0.a) the principle of indemnity, including, where applicable, the experience of the lawyer for the party entitled to the costs as well as the rates charged and the hours spent by that lawyer;

(0.b) the amount of costs that an unsuccessful party could reasonably expect to pay in relation to the step in the proceeding for which costs are being fixed;

(a) the amount claimed and the amount recovered in the proceeding;

(b) the apportionment of liability;

(c) the complexity of the proceeding;

(d) the importance of the issues;

(e) the conduct of any party that tended to shorten or to lengthen unnecessarily the duration of the proceeding;

(f) whether any step in the proceeding was,

(i) improper, vexatious or unnecessary, or

(ii) taken through negligence, mistake or excessive caution;

(g) a party's denial of or refusal to admit anything that should have been admitted;

(h) whether it is appropriate to award any costs or more than one set of costs where a party,

(i) commenced separate proceedings for claims that should have been made in one proceeding, or

(ii) in defending a proceeding separated unnecessarily from another party in the same interest or defended by a different lawyer;

(h.1) whether a party unreasonably objected to proceeding by telephone conference or video conference under rule 1.08; and

(i) any other matter relevant to the question of costs. R.R.O. 1990, Reg. 194, r. 57.01 (1); O. Reg. 627/98, s. 6; O. Reg. 42/05, s. 4 (1); O. Reg. 575/07, s. 1; O. Reg. 689/20, s. 37.

Costs Against Successful Party

(2) The fact that a party is successful in a proceeding or a step in a proceeding does not prevent the court from awarding costs against the party in a proper case. R.R.O. 1990, Reg. 194, r. 57.01 (2).

Fixing Costs: Tariffs

(3) When the court awards costs, it shall fix them in accordance with subrule (1) and the Tariffs. O. Reg. 284/01, s. 15 (1).

Assessment in Exceptional Cases

(3.1) Despite subrule (3), in an exceptional case the court may refer costs for assessment under Rule 58. O. Reg. 284/01, s. 15 (1).

Authority of Court

(4) Nothing in this rule or rules 57.02 to 57.07 affects the authority of the court under section 131 of the Courts of Justice Act,

(a) to award or refuse costs in respect of a particular issue or part of a proceeding;

(b) to award a percentage of assessed costs or award assessed costs up to or from a particular stage of a proceeding;

(c) to award all or part of the costs on a substantial indemnity basis;

(d) to award costs in an amount that represents full indemnity; or

(e) to award costs to a party acting in person. R.R.O. 1990, Reg. 194, r. 57.01 (4); O. Reg. 284/01, s. 15 (2); O. Reg. 42/05, s. 4 (2); O. Reg. 8/07, s. 3.

Bill of Costs

(5) After a trial, the hearing of a motion that disposes of a proceeding or the hearing of an application, a party who is awarded costs shall serve a bill of costs (Form 57A) on the other parties and shall file it, with proof of service. O. Reg. 284/01, s. 15 (3).

Costs Outline

(6) Unless the parties have agreed on the costs that it would be appropriate to award for a step in a proceeding, every party who intends to seek costs for that step shall give to every other party involved in the same step, and bring to the hearing, a costs outline (Form 57B) not exceeding three pages in length. O. Reg. 42/05, s. 4 (3).

Process for Fixing Costs

(7) The court shall devise and adopt the simplest, least expensive and most expeditious process for fixing costs and, without limiting the generality of the foregoing, costs may be fixed after receiving written submissions, without the attendance of the parties. O. Reg. 42/05, s. 4 (3).

Directions to Assessment Officer

57.02 (1) Where costs are to be assessed, the court may give directions to the assessment officer in respect of any matter referred to in rule 57.01. R.R.O. 1990, Reg. 194, r. 57.02 (1).

(2) The court shall record,

(a) any direction to the assessment officer;

Costs of a Motion

Contested Motion

57.03 (1) On the hearing of a contested motion, unless the court is satisfied that a different order would be more just, the court shall,

(a) fix the costs of the motion and order them to be paid within 30 days; or

(b) in an exceptional case, refer the costs of the motion for assessment under Rule 58 and order them to be paid within 30 days after assessment. O. Reg. 284/01, s. 16.

(2) Where a party fails to pay the costs of a motion as required under subrule (1), the court may dismiss or stay the party's proceeding, strike out the party's defence or make such other order as is just. R.R.O. 1990, Reg. 194, r. 57.03 (2).

(5) If the court determines that a plaintiff included a claim for relief in a proceeding in order to be able to commence the action in the Superior Court of Justice instead of in the Small Claims Court, the court may order the payment of costs by the plaintiff. O. Reg. 176/24, s. 3.

Costs of Litigation Guardian

57.06 (1) The court may order a successful party to pay the costs of the litigation guardian of a party under disability who is a defendant or respondent, but may further order that the successful party pay those costs only to the extent that the successful party is able to recover them from the party liable for the successful party's costs. A, s. 123 (1).

Overview

The Ontario Regulation 380/07 under the Public Service of Ontario Act, 2006, addresses the conditions under which public servants in certain positions may be dismissed without cause. It specifies the classes of positions that fall under this provision, focusing on senior management and other managerial roles. The regulation aims to delineate the scope of employment security for public servants by identifying which positions are subject to dismissal without cause, thereby providing clarity on employment terms for these roles (section 1).

The regulation explicitly excludes positions whose incumbents are represented by a bargaining agent for collective bargaining purposes under the Crown Employees Collective Bargaining Act, 1993. This exclusion ensures that employees covered by collective agreements are not subject to the same dismissal provisions, thereby protecting their negotiated employment rights (section 1).

The regulation was last amended by O. Reg. 341/16 and has been in effect since October 12, 2016, as part of the ongoing consolidation of Ontario's public service employment regulations (note).

Provisions' Outline

- Prescribes classes of positions for dismissal without cause, including senior management and managerial roles, while excluding those represented by a bargaining agent.

18.3 (1) A videotape of the testimony of a witness under the age of 18 that satisfies the conditions set out in subsection (2) may be admitted in evidence, if the court is of the opinion that this is likely to help the witness give complete and accurate testimony or that it is in the best interests of the witness. 1995, c. 6, s. 6 (1).

Conditions

(2) The judge or other person who is to preside at the trial and the lawyers of the parties to the proceeding shall be present when the testimony is given, and the lawyers shall be given an opportunity to examine the witness in the same way as if he or she were testifying in the courtroom. 1995, c. 6, s. 6 (1).

Special measures, witness under 18

Screen

18.4 (1) A witness under the age of 18 may testify behind a screen or similar device that allows the witness not to see an adverse party, if the court is of the opinion that this is likely to help the witness give complete and accurate testimony or that it is in the best interests of the witness, and if the condition set out in subsection (4) is satisfied. 1995, c. 6, s. 6 (1).

Closed-circuit television

(2) The court may order that closed-circuit television be used instead of a screen or similar device if the court is of the opinion that,

(a) a screen or similar device is insufficient to allow the witness to give complete and accurate testimony; or

(b) the best interests of the witness require the use of closed-circuit television. 1995, c. 6, s. 6 (1).

Same

(3) If the court makes an order under subsection (2), the witness shall testify outside the courtroom and his or her testimony shall be shown in the courtroom by means of closed-circuit television. 1995, c. 6, s. 6 (1).

Examples

(3) The following are examples of reasons on the basis of which the court may determine that the support person chosen by a witness is not appropriate:

1. The court is of the opinion that the support person may attempt to influence the testimony of the witness.
2. The support person behaves in a disruptive manner.
3. The support person is also a witness in the proceeding. 1995, c. 6, s. 6 (1).

Personal cross-examination by adverse party

18.6 (1) The court may prohibit personal cross-examination of a witness under the age of 18 by an adverse party if the court is of the opinion that such a cross-examination,

(a) would be likely to affect adversely the ability of the witness to give evidence; or

(b) would not be in the best interests of the witness. 1995, c. 6, s. 6 (1).

Alternatives

(2) If the court prohibits personal cross-examination by the adverse party, the cross-examination may be conducted in some other appropriate way (for example, by means of questions written by the adverse party and read to the witness by the court). 1995, c. 6, s. 6 (1).

Attendance of witnesses

19 A witness served in due time with a summons issued out of a court in Ontario, and paid proper witness fees and conduct money, who makes default in obeying such summons, without any lawful and reasonable impediment, in addition to any penalty he or she may incur as for a contempt of court, is liable to an action on the part of the person by whom, or on whose behalf, he or she has been summonsed for any damage that such person may sustain or be put to by reason of such default. R.S.O. 1990, c. E.23, s. 19.

[The following provisions were enacted by the Province of Canada as part of Chapter 9 of 1854. They were carried into the Consolidated Statutes of Canada, 1859 as sections 4-11 and 13 of Chapter 79. They are revised in the Revised Statutes of Ontario to provide for gender-neutrality and to include a French version. See Rideout vs Rideout (1956) O.W.N. 644].

Courts may issue subpoenas to any part of Canada

4. If in any action or suit depending in any of Her Majesty's Superior Courts of Law or Equity in Canada, it appears to the Court, or when not sitting, it appears to any Judge of the Court that it is proper to compel the personal attendance at any trial or enquête or examination of witnesses, of any person who may not be within the jurisdiction of the Court in which the action or suit is pending, the Court or Judge, in their or his or her discretion, may order that a writ called a writ of subpoena ad testificandum or of subpoena duces tecum shall issue in special form, commanding such person to attend as a witness at such trial or enquête or examination of witnesses wherever he or she may be in Canada.

Service thereof in any part of Canada to be good

5. The service of any such writ or process in any part of Canada, shall be valid and effectual to all intents and purposes, as if the same had been served within the jurisdiction of the Court from which it has issued, according to the practice of such Court.

When not to be issued

6. No such writ shall be issued in any case in which an action is pending for the same cause of action, in that section of the Province, whether Upper or Lower Canada respectively, within which such witness or witnesses may reside.

Writs to be specially noted

7. Every such writ shall have at the foot, or in the margin thereof, a statement or notice that the same is issued by the special order of the Court or Judge making such order, and no such writ shall issue without such special order.

Consequences of disobedience

8. In case any person so served does not appear according to the exigency of such writ or process, the Court out of which the same issued, may, upon proof made of the service thereof, and of such default to the satisfaction of such Court, transmit a certificate of such default, under the seal of the same Court, to any of Her Majesty's Superior Courts of Law or Equity in that part of Canada in which the person so served may reside, being out of the jurisdiction of the Court transmitting such certificate, and the Court to which such certificate is sent, shall thereupon proceed against and punish such person so having made default, in like manner as they might have done if such person had neglected or refused to appear to a writ of subpoena or other similar process issued out of such last mentioned Court.

If expenses paid or tendered

9. No such certificate of default shall be transmitted by any Court, nor shall any person be punished for neglect or refusal to attend any trial or enquête or examination of witnesses, in obedience to any such subpoena or other similar process, unless it be made to appear to the Court transmitting and also to the Court receiving such certificate, that a reasonable and sufficient sum of money, according to the rate per diem and per mile allowed to witnesses by the law and practice of the Superior Court of Law within the jurisdiction of which such person was found, to defray the expenses of coming and attending to give evidence and of returning from giving evidence, had been tendered to such person at the time when the writ of subpoena, or other similar process was served upon him or her.

How service proved

10. The service of such writs of subpoena or other similar process, in Lower Canada, shall be proved by the certificate of a Bailiff within the jurisdiction where the service has been made, under his or her oath of office, and such service in Upper Canada by the affidavit of service endorsed on or annexed to such writ by the person who served the same.

Costs of attendance provided for

11. The costs of the attendance of any such witness shall not be taxed against the adverse party to such suit, beyond the amount that would have been allowed on a commission rogatoire, or to examine witnesses unless the Court or Judge before whom such trial or enquête or examination of witnesses is had, so orders.

Power to issue commissions to examine witnesses preserved

13. Nothing herein contained shall affect the power of any Court to issue a commission for the examination of witnesses out of its jurisdiction, nor affect the admissibility of any evidence at any trial or proceeding, where such evidence is now by law receivable, on the ground of any witness being beyond the jurisdiction of the Court.

Examination of witnesses, proof of contradictory written statements

20 A witness may be cross-examined as to previous statements made by him or her in writing, or reduced into writing, relative to the matter in question, without the writing being shown to the witness, but, if it is intended to contradict the witness by the writing, his or her attention shall, before such contradictory proof is given, be called to those parts of the writing that are to be used for the purpose of so contradicting the witness, and the judge or other person presiding at any time during the trial or proceeding may require the production of the writing for his or her inspection, and may thereupon make such use of it for the purposes of the trial or proceeding as he or she thinks fit. R.S.O. 1990, c. E.23, s. 20.

Proof of contradictory oral statements

21 If a witness upon cross-examination as to a former statement made by him or her relative to the matter in question and inconsistent with his or her present testimony does not distinctly admit that he or she did make such statement, proof may be given that the witness did in fact make it, but before such proof is given the circumstances of the supposed statement sufficient to designate the particular occasion shall be mentioned to the witness, and the witness shall be asked whether or not he or she did make such statement. How far a party may discredit his or her own witness

23 A party producing a witness shall not be allowed to impeach his or her credit by general evidence of bad character, but the party may contradict the witness by other evidence, or, if the witness in the opinion of the judge or other person presiding proves adverse, such party may, by leave of the judge or other person presiding, prove that the witness made at some other time a statement inconsistent with his or her present testimony, but before such last-mentioned proof is given the circumstances of the proposed statement sufficient to designate the particular occasion shall be mentioned to the witness and the witness shall be asked whether or not he or she did make such statement. Priorities

(2) The contract shall be interpreted to mean that where, by reason of any one accident, liability results from bodily injury or death and from loss of or damage to property,

(a) claims against the insured arising out of bodily injury or death have priority to the extent of $190,000 over claims arising out of loss of or damage to property; and

(b) claims against the insured arising out of loss of or damage to property have priority to the extent of $10,000 over claims arising out of bodily injury or death.

Minimum limits where separate limits designated

(3) The insurer may, instead of specifying a limit in the policy for an inclusive amount, specify a limit of liability of at least $200,000, exclusive of interest and costs, against liability resulting from bodily injury to or the death of one or more persons and a limit of liability of at least $200,000, exclusive of interest and costs, against liability for loss of or damage to property.

Variation of limits

(4) Nothing in this Part precludes an insurer, with respect to a limit or limits in excess of those specified in subsection (1) or (3), from increasing or reducing the limit or limits specified in the contract with respect to the use or operation of the automobile by a named person, but no reduction is effective for a limit less than that required under subsection (1) or (3). Liability arising from use, etc., outside Ontario

252 (1) Every motor vehicle liability policy issued in Ontario shall provide that, in the case of liability arising out of the ownership or, directly or indirectly, out of the use or operation of the automobile in any province or territory of Canada, in a jurisdiction of the United States of America or in any other jurisdiction designated in the Statutory Accident Benefits Schedule,

(a) the insurer is liable up to the minimum limits prescribed for that province, territory or jurisdiction if those limits are higher than the limits prescribed by the policy;

(b) the insurer will not set up a defence to a claim that could not be set up if the policy were a motor vehicle liability policy issued in that province, territory or jurisdiction; and

(c) the insured, by acceptance of the policy, constitutes and appoints the insurer as the insured's irrevocable attorney to appear and defend in any province or territory of Canada, any jurisdiction of the United States of America or any other jurisdiction designated in the Statutory Accident Benefits Schedule in which an action is brought against the insured arising out of the ownership, use or operation of the automobile. 1996, c. 21, s. 21.

Termination of excess insurance

(2) Where the contract designated in the excess contract terminates or is terminated, the excess contract is also automatically terminated. R.S.O. 1990, c. I.8, s. 253.

Agreement for partial payment of claim by insured

254 Nothing in this Part precludes an insurer from entering into an agreement with its insured under a contract evidenced by a motor vehicle liability policy providing that the insured will reimburse the insurer in an agreed amount in respect of any claim by or judgment in favour of a third party against the insured, and the agreement may be enforced against the insured according to its tenor. R.S.O. 1990, c. I.8, s. 254.

Liability for nuclear energy hazard

255 (1) In this section,

"nuclear energy hazard" means the radio-active, toxic, explosive or other hazardous properties of nuclear substances under the Nuclear Safety and Control Act (Canada). 2004, c. 31, Sched. 20, s. 7.

(2) Where an insured is covered, whether named therein or not, under a contract evidenced by a motor vehicle liability policy for loss or damage resulting from bodily injury to or the death of any person or damage to property arising directly or indirectly out of a nuclear energy hazard and is also covered, whether named therein or not, against such loss or damage under a contract evidenced by a policy of nuclear energy hazard liability insurance issued by a group of insurers and in force at the time of the event giving rise to the loss or damage,

(a) the motor vehicle liability insurance is excess to the nuclear energy hazard liability insurance, and the insurer under the contract of motor vehicle liability insurance is not liable to pay beyond the minimum limits prescribed by section 251; and

(b) the unnamed insured under the contract of nuclear energy liability insurance may, in respect of such loss or damage, recover indemnity under that contract in the same manner and to the same extent as if named therein as the insured, and for that purpose the unnamed insured shall be deemed to be a party to the contract and to have given consideration therefor. Advance payments and release by claimant

256 (1) Where an insurer makes a payment on behalf of an insured under a contract evidenced by a motor vehicle liability policy to a person who is or claims to be entitled to recover from the insured covered by the policy, the payment constitutes, to the extent of the payment, a release by the person or the person's personal representative of any claim that the person or the person's personal representative or any person claiming through or under him or by virtue of Part V of the Family Law Act may have against the insured and the insurer.

Idem

(2) Nothing in this section precludes the insurer making the payment from demanding, as a condition precedent to such payment, a release from the person or the person's personal representative or any other person to the extent of such payment.

Payment to be taken into account

(3) Where the person commences an action, the court shall adjudicate upon the matter first without reference to the payment but in giving judgment the payment shall be taken into account and the person shall only be entitled to judgment for the net amount, if any.

Intention

(4) The intention of this section is to permit payments to a claimant without prejudice to the defendant or the defendant's insurer, either as an admission of liability or otherwise, and the fact of any payment shall not be disclosed to the judge or jury until after judgment but before formal entry thereof. R.S.O. 1990, c. I.8, s. 256.

Defence where more than one contract

257 (1) Where a person is insured under more than one contract evidenced by a motor vehicle liability policy, whether the insurance is first loss insurance or excess, and a question arises under clause 245 (b) between an insurer and the insured or between the insurers as to which insurer shall undertake the obligation to defend in the name and on behalf of the insured, whether or not any insurer denies liability under its contract, the insured or any insurer may apply to the Superior Court of Justice, and the court shall give such directions as may appear proper with respect to the performance of the obligation. R.S.O. 1990, c. I.8, s. 257 (2).

Contribution

(4) Where indemnity is provided to the insured under two or more contracts and one or more of them are excess insurance, the insurers shall, as between themselves, contribute to the payment of expenses, costs and reimbursement for which provision is made in section 245 in accordance with their respective liabilities for damages awarded against the insured. R.S.O. 1990, c. I.8, s. 257 (4).

Application of insurance money, 3rd party claims, etc.

258 (1) Any person who has a claim against an insured for which indemnity is provided by a contract evidenced by a motor vehicle liability policy, even if such person is not a party to the contract, may, upon recovering a judgment therefor in any province or territory of Canada against the insured, have the insurance money payable under the contract applied in or towards satisfaction of the person's judgment and of any other judgments or claims against the insured covered by the contract and may, on the person's own behalf and on behalf of all persons having such judgments or claims, maintain an action against the insurer to have the insurance money so applied. Insurer absolutely liable

(4) The right of a person who is entitled under subsection (1) to have insurance money applied upon the person's judgment or claim is not prejudiced by,

(a) an assignment, waiver, surrender, cancellation or discharge of the contract, or of any interest therein or of the proceeds thereof, made by the insured after the happening of the event giving rise to a claim under the contract;

(b) any act or default of the insured before or after that event in contravention of this Part or of the terms of the contract; or

Section applicable to purported policy

(5) It is not a defence to an action under this section that an instrument issued as a motor vehicle liability policy by a person engaged in the business of an insurer and alleged by a party to the action to be such a policy is not a motor vehicle liability policy, and this section applies with necessary modifications to the instrument. R.S.O. 1990, c. I.8, s. 258 (5).

Contribution among insurers

(6) The insurer may require any other insurers liable to indemnify the insured in whole or in part in respect of judgments or claims to which reference is made in subsection (1) to be made parties to the action and contribute according to their respective liabilities, whether the contribution is rateably or by way of first loss or excess insurance, as the case may be, and the insured shall on demand furnish the insurer with particulars of all other insurance covering the subject-matter of the contract. R.S.O. 1990, c. I.8, s. 258 (6).

Payment into court

(a) there are or may be other claimants; or

(b) there is no person capable of giving and authorized to give a valid discharge for payment who is willing to do so, the insurer may apply to the court without notice for an order for payment of the money into court, and the court may, upon such notice, if any, as it thinks necessary, make an order accordingly. R.S.O. 1990, c. I.8, s. 258 (7).

Effect of order

(8) The receipt of the proper officer of the court is sufficient discharge to the insurer for the insurance money paid into court under subsection (7), and the insurance money shall be dealt with as the court may order upon application of any person interested therein. R.S.O. 1990, c. I.8, s. 258 (8).

(b) as against a claimant, only avail itself of a defence that it is entitled to set up against the insured in respect of that part of the coverage, if any, that exceeds,

(c) the limits mentioned in section 251; or

Income from Self-Employment

83. For the purpose of this Regulation, a person's income from self-employment shall be determined in the same manner as the person's profit from the business in which the person was self-employed would be determined under the Income Tax Act (Canada) and the Income Tax Act (Ontario), but without taking into account,

(a) expenses that are eligible for capital cost allowance or an allowance on eligible capital property;

(b) capital gains or losses; or

(c) losses deductible under section 111 of the Income Tax Act (Canada). O. Reg. 776/93, s. 83.

Pre-Determined Income from Self-Employment

84. Despite section 83, an insurer and a named insured who is self-employed and not otherwise employed may agree in a contract evidenced by a motor vehicle liability policy that, for the purpose of determining benefits under this Regulation in respect of an accident that occurs during the period covered by the contract, the named insured's gross income from self-employment for every week shall be deemed to be the weekly income amount specified in the contract if, at the time of the accident, the person continues to engage in the self-employment in which he or she engaged at the time the contract was entered into and the person is not otherwise employed. O. Reg. 776/93, s. 84.

Income Tax Calculations

85. (1) For the purpose of this Regulation, the income tax payable by a person under the Income Tax Act (Canada) and the Income Tax Act (Ontario) shall be determined having regard to only the following deductions and tax credits that apply to the person under those Acts:

2. Basic personal tax credit.
3. Married person's tax credit or equivalent to married tax credit.
4. Age tax credit.
5. Disability tax credit.
6. Unemployment insurance premium tax credit.

(2) If a determination of the income tax payable by a person under the Income Tax Act (Canada) and the Income Tax Act (Ontario) is necessary to determine the amount of a benefit under this Regulation, a person who applies for the benefit shall provide the insurer with such information as is reasonably necessary to enable the insurer to determine the income tax payable by the insured person under the Income Tax Act (Canada) and the Income Tax Act (Ontario). O. Reg. 776/93, s. 85 (2).

(3) Failure to comply with subsection (2) does not relieve the insurer from any time limit established by this Regulation for the payment of the benefit, but the insurer shall determine the amount of the benefit on the basis of its best estimate of the income tax payable by the person under the Income Tax Act (Canada) and the Income Tax Act (Ontario), subject to later adjustment of the amount of the benefit when subsection (2) is complied with. O. Reg. 776/93, s. 85 (3).

Conversion of Part-Time Income to Full-Time Income

86. (1) For the purpose of subsection 29 (1), a person's net weekly income used in determining the person's pre-accident earning capacity shall be converted to a full-time net weekly income in accordance with this section if,

(a) the person was employed on a part-time basis at some point during the period of time used under section 9 for the purpose of determining the amount of the person's weekly income replacement benefits;

(b) the person would have worked on a full-time basis at some time after the accident; and

(c) the gross income used under section 9 for the purpose of determining the amount of the person's weekly income replacement benefits includes income from employment other than self-employment. O. Reg. 776/93, s. 86 (1).

(2) The full-time net weekly income shall be determined in accordance with section 81 or 82 using a gross annual income determined in accordance with the following formula:

$$A = B \times C \times 52$$

where,

A = the gross annual income,

B = the person's hourly rate of wages or salary in the employment designated under subsection (3),

C = the number of hours in a regular work week for a person employed on a full-time basis in the employment designated under subsection (3), determined in accordance with subsection (4).

O. Reg. 776/93, s. 86 (2).

(3) For the purpose of subsection (2), the person shall designate one employment, other than self-employment, in which the person engaged on a part-time basis during the time period used under section 9 for the purpose of determining the amount of the person's weekly income replacement benefits. O. Reg. 776/93, s. 86 (3).

(4) For the purpose of subsection (2), the number of hours in a regular work week for a person employed on a full-time basis in the employment designated under subsection (3) shall be determined in accordance with the following rules:

1. If the number of hours in a regular work week for a person employed on a full-time basis is fixed by a collective agreement or by law for a person employed in the position in which the person whose full-time net weekly income is to be determined was employed, that number of hours shall be used for the purpose of subsection (2).
2. If rule 1 does not apply but there is a standard number of hours in a regular work week for a person employed on a full-time basis in the position in which the person whose full-time net weekly income is to be determined was employed, that number of hours shall be used for the purpose of subsection (2).
3. If rules 1 and 2 do not apply but there is a standard number of hours in a regular work week for other persons employed on a full-time basis in the workplace in which the person whose full-time net weekly income is to be determined was employed, that number of hours shall be used for the purpose of subsection (2).
4. If rules 1 to 3 do not apply but there is a standard number of hours in a regular work week for persons employed on a full-time basis in the industry or profession in which the person whose full-time net weekly income is to be determined was employed, that number of hours shall be used for the purpose of subsection (2).
5. If rules 1 to 4 do not apply but there is a reasonable method for establishing the number of hours in a regular work week for a person employed on a full-time basis for the purpose of subsection (2), that method shall be used.
6. If rules 1 to 5 do not apply, the number of hours in a regular work week for a person employed on a full-time basis shall be deemed to be 36.5 hours for the purpose of subsection (2). O. Reg. 776/93, s. 86 (4).

Net Weekly Income Formula

61. (1) For the purpose of this Regulation, a person's net weekly income from employment shall be determined in accordance with the following formula:

$$A = (B – C – D – E)/52$$

where,

A = the person's net weekly income from employment,

B = the person's gross annual income from employment,

C = the annual premium payable by the person under the Employment Insurance Act (Canada) on the gross annual income from employment,

D = the annual contribution payable by the person under the Canada Pension Plan on the gross annual income from employment,

E = the income tax payable by the person under the Income Tax Act (Canada) and the Income Tax Act (Ontario) on the gross annual income from employment.

O. Reg. 403/96, s. 61 (1).

(2) For the purpose of subsection (1), the person whose net weekly income from employment is to be determined shall be deemed to be a resident of Ontario. O. Reg. 403/96, s. 61 (2).

Income from Self-Employment

62. (1) For the purpose of this Regulation, a person's income from self-employment shall be determined in the same manner as the person's profit from the business in which the person was self-employed would be determined under the Income Tax Act (Canada) and the Income Tax Act (Ontario), but without taking into account,

(a) expenses that are eligible for capital cost allowance or an allowance on eligible capital property;

(b) capital gains or losses; or

(c) losses deductible under section 111 of the Income Tax Act (Canada). O. Reg. 403/96, s. 62 (1).

(2) Despite subsection (1), an insurer and a named insured who is self-employed and not otherwise employed may agree in a contract evidenced by a motor vehicle liability policy that, for the purpose of determining benefits under this Regulation in respect of an accident that occurs during the period covered by the contract, the named insured's gross income from self-employment for every week shall be deemed to be the weekly income amount specified in the contract if, at the time of the accident, the person continues to engage in the self-employment in which he or she engaged at the time the contract was entered into and the person is not otherwise employed. O. Reg. 403/96, s. 62 (2).

(3) In specifying a weekly income amount for the purpose of subsection (2), the insurer and insured may use information from any source, including,

(a) personal and corporate income tax returns and assessments;

(b) personal and corporate financial statements; and

(c) published data on the average wage for the industry or occupation in which the insured is self-employed. O. Reg. 403/96, s. 62 (3).

O. Reg. 462/96, s. 11.

(3) Failure to comply with subsection (2) does not relieve the insurer from any time limit established by this Regulation for the payment of the benefit, but the insurer shall determine the amount of the benefit on the basis of its best estimate of the income tax payable by the person under the Income Tax Act (Canada) and the Income Tax Act (Ontario), subject to later adjustment of the amount of the benefit when subsection (2) is complied with. O. Reg. 403/96, s. 63 (3).

O. Reg. 458/03, s. 11.

(2) Where the amount of a person's income before an accident is determined for the purposes of this Regulation in accordance with subsection (1), the amount of the income may be adjusted to reflect any change in the amount of the person's income reported or determined in accordance with the Income Tax Act (Canada) or legislation of another jurisdiction that imposes a tax calculated by reference to income. 1. Paraplegia or tetraplegia that meets the following criteria:

i. The insured person's neurological recovery is such that the person's permanent grade on the ASIA Impairment Scale, as published in Marino, R.J. et al, International Standards for Neurological Classification of Spinal Cord Injury, Journal of Spinal Cord Medicine, Volume 26, Supplement 1, Spring 2003, can be determined.

ii. The insured person's permanent grade on the ASIA Impairment Scale is or will be,

(a) the amount of any gross weekly payment for loss of income that is received by or available to the person as a result of the accident under the laws of any jurisdiction or under any income continuation benefit plan, other than,

(i) a benefit under the Employment Insurance Act (Canada),

(ii) a payment under a sick leave plan that is available to the person but is not being received, and

(iii) a payment under a workers' compensation law or plan that is not being received by the person because the person has elected under the workers' compensation law or plan to bring an action and is not entitled to the payment, and

(b) the amount of any gross weekly payment for loss of income, other than a benefit or payment described in subclauses (a) (i) to (iii) that may be available to the person as a result of the accident under the laws of any jurisdiction or under any income continuation benefit plan but is not being received by the person and for which the person has not made an application. ("autre assistance au titre du remplacement du revenu") O. Reg. 34/10, s. 4 (1).

(2) The gross annual employment income of an insured person is determined as follows:

1. In the case of a person referred to in subparagraph 1 i of subsection 5 (1) who was not a self-employed person at any time during the four weeks before the accident, the person's gross annual employment income is whichever of the following amounts the person designates:

i. The person's gross employment income for the four weeks before the accident, multiplied by 13.

ii. The person's gross employment income for the 52 weeks before the accident.

O. Reg. 34/10, s. 4 (3).

(4) A self-employed person's loss from self-employment after an accident is determined in the same manner as losses from the business in which the person was self-employed would be determined under subsection 9 (2) of the Income Tax Act (Canada) without making any deductions for,

(a) any expenses that were not reasonable or necessary to prevent a loss of revenue;

(b) any salary expenses paid to replace the self-employed person's active participation in the business, except to the extent that the expenses are reasonable in the circumstances; and

(c) any non-salary expenses that are different in nature or greater than the non-salary expenses incurred before the accident, except to the extent that those expenses are reasonable in the circumstances and necessary to prevent or reduce any losses resulting from the accident. O. Reg. 34/10, s. 4 (4).

(5) If, under the Income Tax Act (Canada) or legislation of another jurisdiction that imposes a tax calculated by reference to income, a person is required to report the amount of his or her income, the person's income before an accident shall be determined for the purposes of this Part without reference to any income the person has failed to report contrary to that Act or legislation. O. Reg. 34/10, s. 4 (5).

(6) The amount of a person's gross annual employment income and the amount of the person's income or loss from self-employment may be adjusted for the purposes of this Part to reflect any subsequent change in the amount determined by the Canada Revenue Agency under the Income Tax Act (Canada) or by the relevant government or agency under the legislation of another jurisdiction that imposes a tax calculated by reference to income. (b) adding the amounts determined under clause (a), if more than one type of attendant care is required. O. Reg. 34/10, s. 19 (2).

5. Despite paragraphs 1, 2 and 3, if a person who provided attendant care services (the "attendant care provider") to or for the insured person did so for remuneration, and the actual expenses incurred in respect of the attendant care services are lower than the amount of the monthly attendant care benefit as determined under subsection (2), the insurer shall only be liable for payment of the incurred expenses.
