Ozwald Boateng, OBE is a British tailor and designer known for his bespoke tailoring of menswear. His first retail store opened on Vigo Street, at the end of London's prestigious Savile Row, in 1995.

A model from the Fall 1996 collection walked down the runway wearing a navy blue pinstriped suit, brown shoes, and medium blue overcoat. The red background of the runway accentuated the shades of blue in the suit.

Use the fashion croquis on the next page to illustrate your interpretation of this look. Suzy Menkes of the International Herald Tribune, wrote in her review that the "sleek suits [were] inspired by James Bond."
