NFL Free Agency: Trades, Signings, and the 2020 NFL

Hey guys, thanks for tuning in to The Extra Point. I'm your host Austin Grignon; and today we're gonna be looking at the best and worst moves of the NFL off season so far.

Angle 1: Trades (:30)

The best trade:

Howie Roseman pulled off another robbery. With the eagles receiving Darius Slay, they get a superstar at cornerback. Only having to give up a 3rd and 5th round pick, the Eagles bolstered their weakest position at a bargain.

The worst trade:

The Texan's Bill O'Brien has proven to be a worse GM than head coach if that was even possible. He traded away a top 3 receiver in Deandre Hopkins for only a second round pick. The move is so bad, it may cost him his franchise QB Deshaun Watson.

Angle 2: Free Agent Signings (:30)

The best FA signing:

The New Orleans Saints finally found their #2 wideout. Emmanuel Sanders has been to a Superbowl with all three of his former teams, and he doesn't want to stop now. Getting a 2 year 16 million dollar deal, the Saints found a bargain, and the receiver found a place to catch passes.

The worst FA signing:

Halapoulivaati Vaitai. His name has more syllables than he's started games, but the Detroit lions thought it would be smart to give him 50 million dollars over 5 years. He's a career backup that GM Bob Quinn was convinced to pay like a top 5 starter.

Angle 3: Keys to the 2020 NFL season (:30)

The biggest storyline for the 2020 season:

How will the New England Patriots fare without their beloved Tom Brady? Well, it's gonna be easy to pencil having the worst division in football. And bringing back the leagues best secondary the last 2 years doesn't hurt either. In the hoodie we trust.

The biggest change:

TB to TB. With Brady moving on to Tampa Bay, how will the 43 year old QB fair in the best division in football? I can almost guarantee Tom will be the worst QB in the division having to face Drew Brees, Matt Ryan, and Teddy Bridgewater 2 times this year.

Angle 4: Season Predictions

The shakedown for the season:

The way I see the season shaking up, the Chargers and Saints will be stealing the #1 seeds, followed be the Patriots and Packers, Ravens and 49ers, and the Colts and Eagles being their conferences 4th seed.
