Book Title: Billy Brown's Cat

Summary: Billy Brown isn't very happy when his mom gets him a cat instead of a puppy. When the cat goes missing and Billy Brown finds him, he realizes he wants a cat after all.

Day One: Preview the Book (10-20 minutes)

Book Walk

Look at the cover of the book together. Read the book will be about.

Ask how Billy looks in the illustration on the that Billy is mad, perhaps even angry, and together at page 2. Ask: What feelings do feelings than what Billy shows on the cov angry?

Next page through the book together point out things they find interesting.

- How do Billy's feelings change beginning, middle, and end of the story?
- What do you see in the different illustrations that tell you throughout the story?
- What do you predict changed Billy's feelings at the end of the story?

Day Two: Read Together (20 minutes)

Ask your child: What do you remember about Billy Brown's Cat? Talk about the feelings they identified from the illustrations (anger, sadness, disappointment). Ask your child to think about those feelings as they read the book and notice how Billy Brown's feelings change.

This curriculum-to-go learning pack includes four texts with accompanying activity sheets for science, social studies, fiction, and SEL (social emotional learning). Created for first grade, the books are at guided reading levels of E-J. Each activity sheet leads the caregiver through activities to do with their child. Each text is the focus of about 20 minutes per day of activities. Consider assigning one book per week.

Dear Caregiver,

Welcome to Curriculum-to-Go! This pack has four books to help you boost your child's learning about important topics appropriate for their grade level, focusing on:

- Fiction
- Science
- Social studies
- Social emotional learning (Social emotional learning helps your child understand and then apply the skills they need to understand and manage their emotions, set and achieve positive goals, feel and show empathy for others, establish and maintain positive relationships, and make responsible decisions.)

Each book in the pack has an activity sheet with the title and subject of the book. There are activities to do each day, about 20 minutes per day. Use one book a week and work on the activities with your child. Be sure to take your child's lead. If your child is struggling, for example, break the book into smaller chunks and do the activities together. If your child has already mastered the skills, you might have your child research to find more about the topic or create a project about it.

How can you help your child succeed? Consider these tips:

- Set and keep a schedule. The closer the schedule is to a regular school day, the easier it will be for your child to focus on schoolwork. Be sure to build in breaks for exercise and other activities.
- Think about when your child is most alert as you plan the day. If your child is most alert in the morning, that's a great time to focus on subjects that are more difficult for him or her. If the material is easy for your child, focus on it at a time when your child is not as easily focused.
- Create a space for your child to learn. Your child might have a desk or sit at a kitchen table. Some children can focus better standing than sitting. No matter where your child's learning space is, be sure that they aren't isolated or too distracted. You might use background noise like soft music to help your child focus. Do what works best for him or her.
- Be sure that your child has all the supplies they need before they start working—pencil and paper, books, logins for their accounts, and so on.
- Make a daily plan. At the end of each day, identify with your child what to do the next day and make a list for the next day. Checklists are great for some children who need extra help focusing.
- Help your child understand the material—but don't do the work for them!
- Provide positive feedback to your child and let them know that they are doing a great job of learning in new ways. Reach out to your child's teacher if you need support or ideas for working with your child.

Enjoy learning with your child!
