How It Works (High Level)

Some companies that become insolvent and sitting dormant still have unused Corporation Tax credits, typically originating from historic R&D claims.

As a consortium we are able to purchase these companies by offering a better price to the administrator than the insolvency practitioners.

We then rebrand these companies to match those of the client company, request HMRC to allow the offset of said Tax credit to their PAYE account via HMRC's statutory cross-tax set-off powers and directly apply this to offset Employer National Insurance. To remove any doubt, the client company does not have to be carrying out Research & Development, it is purely the reason how the initial Tax Credit came to being.

Legislative basis: Finance Act 2008, Section 130.
