
POLICE WEEK AT THE RANCH

Dignitary Protection Fundamentals for Law Enforcement

Real feedback. Real application. Real value.

WHY THIS TRAINING MATTERS

Officers are increasingly being tasked with VIP movements, major event security, single-principal protection, overwatch operations, and executive movement support, often without formal protection-specific training.

- Protection mindset
- Movement principles
- Planning and coordination
- Threat awareness
- Protective responsibility

This 4-hour Police Week block was designed to bridge that gap.

TRAINING THAT RESONATED

Very glad I took the course and look forward to next year.

— Police Week Student | Mental Health Unit / Tactical Medic
Program

IMMEDIATE FIELD APPLICATION

I used the knowledge and skill set today, first day back since training.

— Police Week Student | Patrol Division

PROTECTIVE OPERATIONS MINDSET

The training gave me a better understanding of coordination, planning, and the overall protective operations mindset, which I can apply directly to my current role.

SEEING THE ASSIGNMENT DIFFERENTLY

This class definitely opened my eyes to some aspects of the assignment I had not previously considered.

— Police Week Student | Law Enforcement Officer

EXPERIENCE MATTERS

It did not feel like death by PowerPoint. It felt like training from someone who has actually lived the work.

Dignitary Protection Fundamentals for Law Enforcement

COURSE TAKEAWAY

The goal was not to create protection experts in four hours. The goal was to expose officers to practical protection concepts they can use when assigned to movements, events, overwatch, or single-principal security.

MINDSET

Think beyond traditional patrol response.

MOVEMENT

Understand positioning, spacing, and responsibility.

PLANNING

Recognize the value of preparation and coordination.

APPLICATION

Connect classroom concepts to real assignments.

THANK YOU

The Ranch | Police Week Attendees | Agencies Represented

Thank you to the officers who attended, contributed to the discussion, and shared feedback. I look forward to continuing to expand practical protection training opportunities for law enforcement professionals.
