Allowing us to talk about connections and hearing examples of best practices

Gives us a chance to talk about issues with people who really know how it is to teach

You were willing to listen to our situations and offer meaningful advice

I have learned a lot of “real situation” solutions

I definitely have never thought of students having different personalities and treating them differently. I have personal relationships with my students but never thought about handling situations differently

I learned a lot about dealing with the different learning personalities of the students I found it to be very helpful

I loved how the floor was open and we could ask questions

I really enjoyed the positive energy ... it was inspirational!

I think this workshop allowed me to see a different approach to handling situations

What really helped was being able to hear student teacher issues being talked through

We got real life questions answered and it helped us to figure out how to deal with these situations

After my first two weeks in a classroom I had all kinds of questions and feelings of inadequacy. This workshop could not have come at a more perfect time, or with better information or advice.
