Webinars and Workshops

In the past three months, comprehensive webinars and workshops focused on digital literacy, artificial intelligence in education, and effective instructional strategies. Key sessions addressed digital skills for adult educators, practical AI tool exploration, and the impact of generative AI in educational settings.

In January, sessions included topics like digital skills for educators, AI tools exploration, and generative AI's role in enhancing education. February's webinars expanded on digital literacy competencies, integrating AI in teaching, and AI tools for research. March focused on digital literacy skills pertinent to workplace entry and participation for ABE/GED learners and assessment strategies for their digital literacy skill acquisition.

Blog Posts and Podcast Series

Our blog and podcast series continue to offer valuable insights into teaching, learning, and adult education. We invite our members to engage with these resources to enhance their professional development and to contribute to the broader community discourse.

Upcoming Webinar

We are pleased to announce an upcoming webinar titled Introducing HIDOC: High-Impact Design for Online Courses, scheduled for April 18 at 1:30 pm CST via Zoom, facilitated by Bethany Simunich, Andrea Gregg, and Penny Ralston-Berg.

The speakers will introduce the HIDOC (High Impact Design for Online Courses) model in this webinar. HIDOC fills the instructional design model and text gap by focusing on online course design. It also provides a start-to-finish blueprint for instructors working alone, instructors working in collaboration with designers, and instructional designers (ID) who want to use a systematic model created specifically for online course design. HIDOC emphasizes strategic conversations between instructor /subject matter experts and IDs.
