To me, an artist means someone who puts creativity into their works which shows a form of art. An artist doesn't have to mean someone who makes a painting master piece or drawings. It could also mean a musician, actor, writer, director, illustrator, singer, or an author. All these show many forms of art which shows why they're artists.

I believe that someday there will be a documentary or news about the corona virus and the vaccine that will make history for people and in the world hear about this.

The artist Donna Bates did an amazing art piece. I like how the woman she made is wearing an american flag clothing. This can show maybe that the woman is patriotic to America, the land she is from. But the background sort of shows a sad and depressing feel based on the color and the drip paint look.

I feel like the artists steal or get ideas from other original artists based off their work because they're probably an influence to them and also inspires them to make art like them. It's just like how an artist can cover a song from another artist. Maybe remaster the piece or make the piece better.

With artist I'm doing, I realized that he uses different characters from shows or movies and uses his signature character look he uses. I feel like I have to be creative with character and use a lot of colors.

With the artist, I chose I realized that he uses a lot of color in his artworks. I also noticed that he has a signature work he has that everyone knows about. In my artwork, I realized to use colors and also make a work that's best known to my fake artist I'm doing and creating.
