all of the colors are dull, except for her skin + the flag

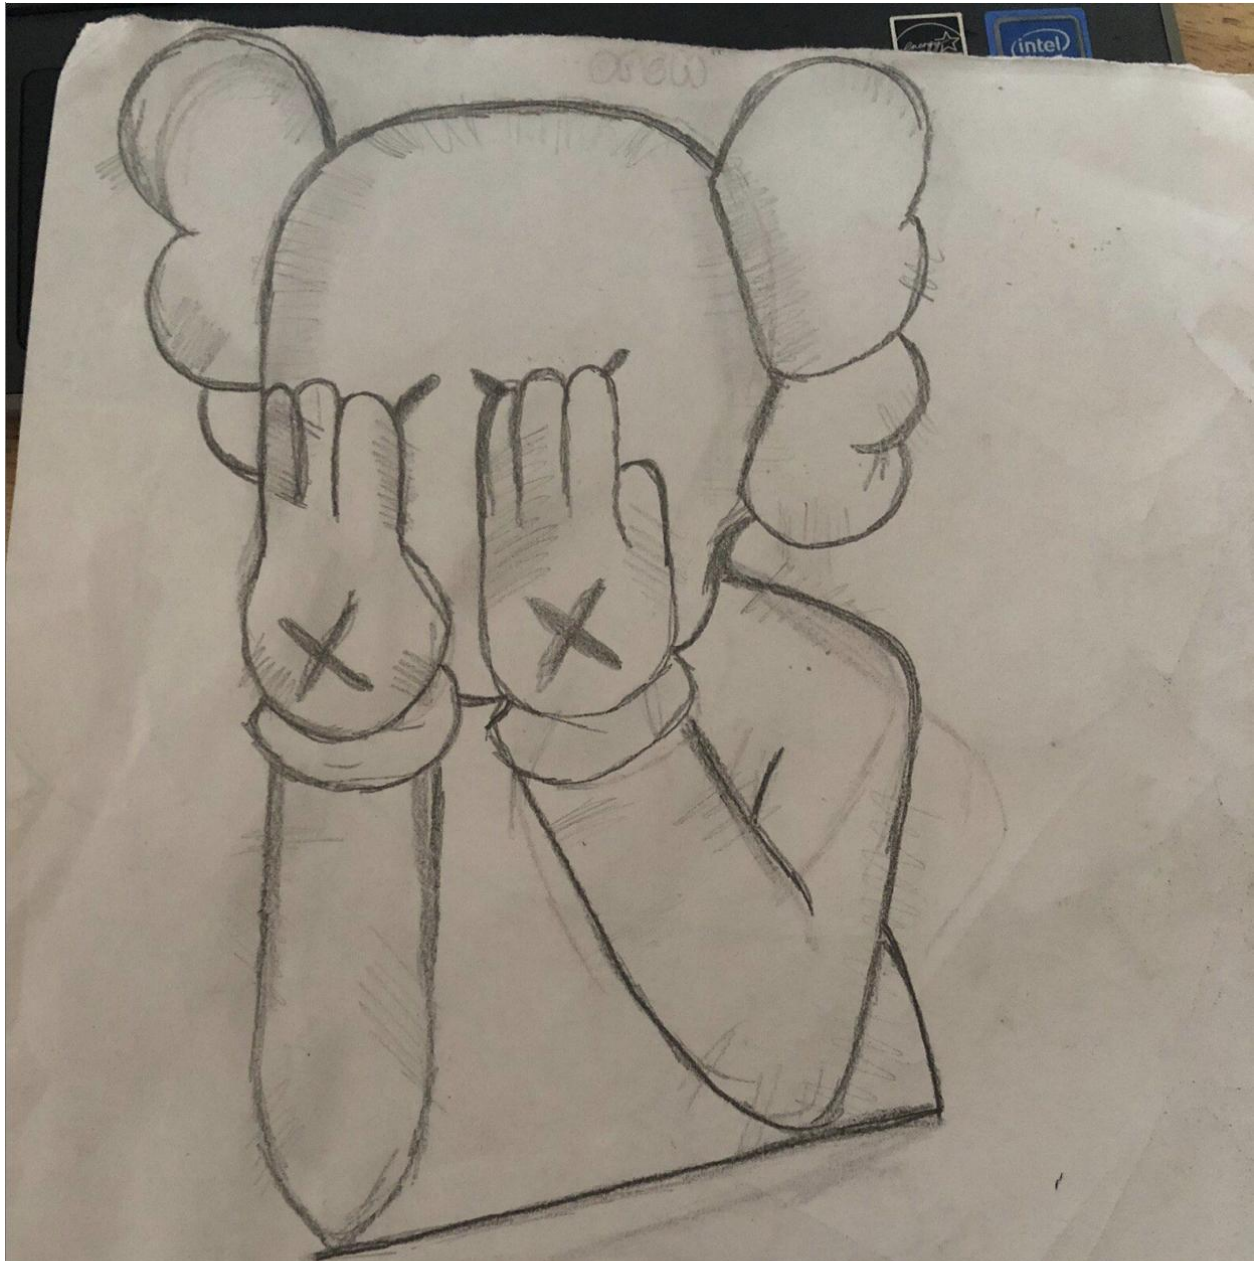

she seems to look at a object she is looking up she seems very serious a proud of who she sees by the flag she seems like she is living the moment she seems to be like if she is part of the dull lack ground by her face expression

"passing Through Open"

the artwork that has inspired me from the contemporary artist KAWS! this his painting called "passing through open"

so i decided to get the inspiration from KALL the way how he draws the hands on the characters faces he makes. i covered the whole paper with hands covering this creature because we tend to hide from the world and we are afraid how we are viewed or judge by others so we tend to hide our identities from the world

the image i "stole" ideas from and did into my idea and did it better and transformed it into the old lady and made it better!

stealing an idea by other artists ideas is borrowing it and changing it to make it better with your ideas or influences you have gained from that piece and making it in your own way and adapting it to make it better. in this piece i changed it to a older person and to a female as well and added like glasses and features to it.

so far i have gotten this far for creating a piece or art and this is like a sketch annotations or thumbnails i have so far for my final piece this is just and idea i have so far i am working with hands because from the artist i chose he had a lot of involvement with hands so i got the inspiration to work with hands and to give it a twist and do my art piece different than his.

fake art of tinkerbelle just put her hair down and fixed a couple of things to not make it look like her!

here are some of the thumbnails i decided to put in my art show or ideas I have so far in mind and I plan to work on paper or drawing paper or canvas on a flat surface.

my work so far is going to be done on paper or on a canvas some thing that I can work with very well and prefer in my choice and so far it is going to be a painting or a drawing that is in black and white to portray better the shading.

people tend to put each other down for who they are and when they do support or reach for them they try to drag them down with them as well it's like hitting rock bottom if 'I hit rock bottom, you are also hitting rock bottom with me as well.'

I decided to make a random portrait of a non visible women meaning you can't really see her face or what she looks like because I felt like it would've been better and with the colors and etc. I decided to make something thing different as well.

the purpose of art is to express your imagination in nongrammatical ways. art helps provide ideas and symbols to be defined by the artist and the world. Helps bring your world to life when you want to help you in maybe different ways helps you express your emotions.

I just used tools that were around me such as a deck of cards that I had so decided to convert it into a dress because the way how I would fan the cards or hold the cards across my face or held the cards for the other person to choose a card which thought to convert it into a dress which it looked like.

REBECA CISNEROS Imagine if social media had limited time to be on each app, like if it were to be a store closing down at a certain time. We would all be forced to go outside and meet up to speak to each other in the real world, to be present with your families, friends, dating, to make art, music and etc. Make sure you are happy in the real world, not just on social media. Imagine if people were to be humble, to be real, happy, honest, themselves, and if people loved one another no matter what the issue is.

REBECA CISNEROS A lot of artists know the power of fueling yourself from the outside, whether that's social or long walks in the country or through shops and back alleys or just your commute, finding something that energizes you is vital. We don't know what it is or we can't get to it. This is why I think we often need others to take our hand and bring us to it. Artists just express the energy they take in with a different language.

REBECA CISNEROS Cartoons are universal medium enjoyed and understood around the world and across the borders. I believe that cartoonists have a humor and easy to understand not like the painter, they have deeper messages on his/hers art and not easy to understand and in a more emotional way of drawing or painting. This is why cartoons have survived so long as an art form. A cartoon starts with an idea, it can be verbal, written in words, and it can be visual.

REBECA CISNEROS The spokesperson point is to get across that there is more information as into what you look, than just to what you see or we see. Once you start looking for that missing piece or extra piece of information, you will find out how much you are missing out on. We should be able to see what is beyond the looking. The information given to you about any piece, one can get by looking deeply into the real life of world, things, mysterious hidden things and solve mysteries in a unique way. This talk was about to bring light to the importance of visual intelligence on our daily life.

REBECA CISNEROS Art can help anyone and yourself to get better at analyzing stuff. You can use it to train your analyzing skills, but it doesn't say it's the only way! Of course one can get really good at analyzing stuff without the help of art, but it's one more way to train your analyzing skills. Art is really required for you to look at the hidden details or go inot more depth of the image because you can miss a lot of information or can misinterpret the whole idea of the message to the piece of art. You can see the irony or story behind those hidden things. Just like in this art piece made by Naomi I believe so the color and the parts of the faces are different from one another meaning it doesnt matter how you look like beauty comes within the person and no matter how he or she looks like is from and etc beauty is within. Thats why there is flowers in the background and the different faces and the colors. art pieces -

REBECA CISNEROS Story telling is very important because it teaches the real world & how does the real world treat us as well. It also teaches us about others, our history, and about yourself to. This device of storytelling is a marvelous unique way to determine, understand, and respect others for who they are or what their cultures are beliefs and etc. We should appreciate others & understand others and come as a whole. Leave the world on a positive note with no remorse & grudges. Story telling is a way to communicate & a way to understand others deeply.
