

EVERYDAY INTEGRITY

Integrity means being honest and doing the right thing even when no one is watching. It's about keeping your promises, being fair to others, and standing up for what you believe is right. When you have integrity, you show good character by being truthful, reliable, and respectful to yourself and those around you. It's important to practice integrity even during ordinary, everyday moments.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

Below are some everyday situations that you may (or perhaps already have!) come across in life. How could you handle these situations with integrity?

While walking in the park, you find a wallet with money inside. What would you do?

Your neighbor asks you to water their plants while they're away, and they offer to pay you. After finishing the job, they forget to give you the money. What would you do?

During a game of soccer with friends, the ball goes out of bounds, but your team is awarded a point. What would you do?

You discover a cheat code that could help you win a game online, but it's not allowed. What would you do?

While playing with a friend or sibling, you accidentally break one of their toys. What would you do?

Your sibling shares a secret with you, but asks you not to tell anyone. Later, your parents ask if you know anything about it. What would you do?

You receive two identical birthday gifts. One is from a close friend, and the other is from a friend you're not as close to. What would you do?

You and your friends are playing in the park, and you accidentally knock over a garbage bin. What would you do?

You have a delicious treat, and your friend really wants to try it. However, you only have one. What would you do?
