SALES SUPPORT
		N/A
I want to grow my business and have a list of sources that I am going to use regularly to build lists of possible clients for the future.				I want to grow my business and have an idea of the types of people who would be interested in being clients, but I don't know where to find their details.
I make time to regularly reach out to potential new clients to let them know about my business, and make sure that I follow up on all calls in appropriate timescales.				I want to reach out to sell my products / services to potential new clients, but it isn't something that I've done before and it isn't something that I am confident in doing, even if I do have the time!
I keep on top of the list of people I've spoken to in the past. I know who to contact and when it is a good time to do so in order to speak to them when they are most likely to want to buy from me.				I have a list of people that I have been in touch with in the past but I'm not sure if they are still interested and when and how it's a good time to get in touch with them.
I have a process and am confident that I can find the right data to regularly top up my pipeline with prospective customers. I am always able to get in touch with new people that may be interested in what I do.				I know that I need to broaden the number of people that I am speaking to about my business, but I'm not sure where to find them. Even if I do, I don't have the time to collate all of the information.
I have a strategy to get in touch with the prospective customers that I have identified, and I have set aside time to get the most out of the data I have.				I have a list of people that might be interested in my business, but I don't know where to start with contacting them, and don't really have the time anyway.

If you find yourself with more ticks on the right than the left, then we can help you.
