HOW DID YOU RUN?

When we are saved by grace through Jesus Christ, not everyone responds the same way.

Some accept salvation but remain distant—quiet, comfortable, and content with routine. They go about life without much spiritual engagement, mostly receiving but rarely contributing, consumers.

Others walk faithfully. They seek God daily, live with gratitude, and actively serve. They give, help, volunteer, and pour into others. They are active believers.

And then there are those who surrender everything. They no longer live for themselves, but fully for Christ and His mission. They count their lives as loss compared to knowing Him. They die daily—to pride, to sin, to the flesh—and choose eternal purpose over temporary pleasure.

Yet in all of this, we must remember something essential:

We are not called to judge each other's journey.

Grace opens the door for everyone—but growth looks different for each person. We won't all walk the same path, mature at the same pace, or express our faith in identical ways. Still, our standing remains the same: we are all in Christ, and we are all a work in progress.

So when you see someone growing faster, don't feel discouraged. You're not falling behind—you're simply on your own path of transformation.

This race isn't about competition.

It's about compassion.

Instead of rushing ahead to “finish first,” we're called to look behind us—to lift, encourage, and walk alongside those who are struggling.

The beauty of this race is that no one is disqualified. Not your past. Not your mistakes. Not your failures.

The invitation is for everyone.

So run—not to beat others—but to love them.
Run—not to compete—but to complete the journey together.
Run—not for recognition—but for transformation.

Because in the end, no one will ask if you won.

They will ask: how did you run?

Prayer

Lord Jesus,
Thank You for Your grace that makes me worthy. Help me not to settle for comfort, but to pursue You deeply. Teach me to love like You, to serve selflessly, and to seek the lost with compassion. Use my life for Your purpose and help me to be faithful with what You've given me.
Amen.
