What It Do!

When I got to my ship in the Navy, my new homie from Detroit said that to me. Not really sure because I had never heard someone ask me, I responded "I'm good." He gave me a pound and I knew that we were speaking a similar dialogue.

In order to truly digest The Focus Magazine, it's stories, and the people writing them, you have to at least try to understand the language we speak.

We are pleased to continue to bring a voice of a culture oftentimes misrepresented by the stories the alternative desires to tell.

Everyone has a voice, everyone matters, everyone can learn from someone else.

Stay Focused My Friends and enjoy.

Make Roanoke Skate Again!

My name is JC, and when I was 14, I moved to Roanoke, Virginia. It was then that I realized that I wanted to start a skateboarding and at the time I didn't have the means or the money. I ended up getting a cheap skateboard for Christmas that year, and I immediately went outside and shoveled off the sidewalk so I could skateboard.

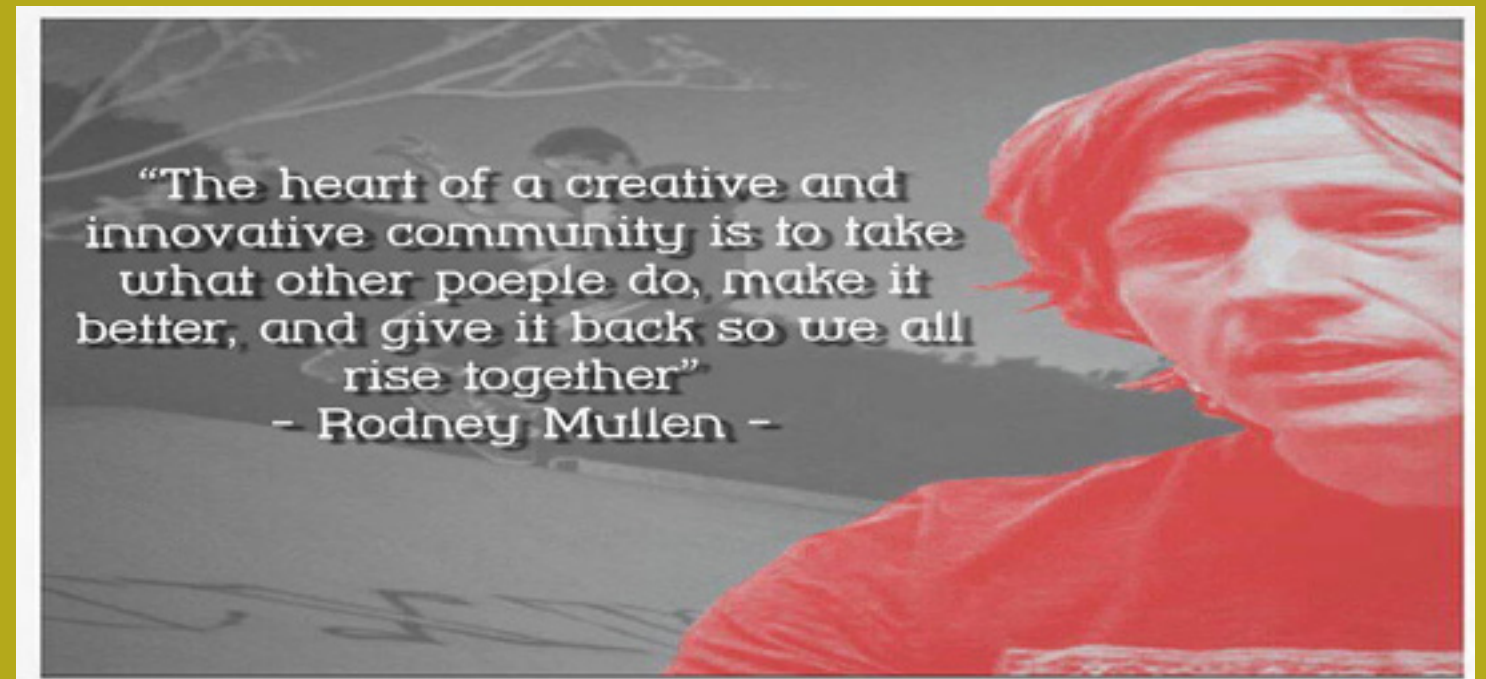

Recently I moved back to Roanoke after being gone for six years. The Wasena Skate Park was pretty much out of commission when I left, ramps busted, homeless living under ramps, and everything was starting to deteriorate. But now, with the pandemic, and all the COVID relief money going towards revitalizing the community. The Roanoke Skatepark Initiative has been trying to get a better skatepark, an actual skate park, and built in Roanoke for the community. The skateboard community.

At the present moment, there are a lot of dedicated skaters in Roanoke that are pushing for a new skate park, so that teens and young adults, even older adults can have a place to call their own. So they can enjoy doing what they love, in a place where it's acceptable. That's what keeps people out of trouble having something to do, having a hobby that they enjoy, instead of something that's forced on them. Say your dad wants you to play football, and you don't want to, so you just go off and do other things to rebel against him that might or might not get you into trouble. But skateboarding, provides an outlet for rebellion, but it's positive rebellion, and that's what we want. We want people to stand up for what they want in positive ways and help build the community instead of tearing the community down.

That's why I've made it a point to write about the Roanoke Skatepark Initiative, and trying to get a skatepark built in Roanoke to help with the development of young people and help them find a way to be productive in the community.

I'm JC, and skateboarding will live on in Roanoke.

Focus Fashion is an entity of NuFocus Group better known as NFX. NFX is a full service digital media company owned by Tommy Page. Mr. Page already had a magazine called The Focus. In 2017 when Erica Jenkins started working at NFX. Tommy asked if she wanted to highlight fashion to the magazine and Erica replied fashion needs its own magazine. That's how we started Focus Fashion Magazine. They wanted a magazine that included diversity to our backgrounds. So after creating a few Focus Fashion issues they decided to do an all inclusive Focus and Fashion Latina magazine. Erica being from New Jersey is very familiar with a different backgrounds of the Hispanic Culture, and wanted to embrace that. Many people are not aware of the diversity of Latin culture and the many countries that influence its fashion. Focus Fashion Latina is based on that

Trials of a Forbidden King

I don't think I've ever seen a man so fine
Staring into his eyes that shine with a passionate drive
In him the urgency for his life to thrive
To be successful his limit past the skies
Not just book smart but knowledgeable of many things
Like the roots that gave him life
Ancestral Kings and Queens
The sacrifices they made and the choices they never had
He walks with his head high and strolls with pride
Hands a little rough from all the hard labor he's done
But he takes it all in stride
Because he's determined he's going to be someone
To get out of the hood with ideas of businesses to run
Altho times are rough for this strong black man
He's determined to shine thru all this darkness thrown at him because of the color of his skin and past mistakes
For the actions of others their punishment he takes
But be strong my Kings don't break
Because it's not up to them
You determine your own fate

Celebrating the day of the dead.

For me, the Day of the Dead was a tradition that inadvertently became one of the most significant in my life when I was at the University of New Mexico at the Centro de la Raza (UNM) since 2002 when my grandfather Gabriel Cortez passed away. I learned about this pre-Hispanic celebration, putting the altars decorated with the art of papel picado, the sugar skulls, the meanings of the candles, food and incense or copal. This tradition is celebrated on the first and second days of November. On November 1st. we celebrate the souls of children who have passed away and on November 2nd the lives of adults. These days we honor our loved ones who have passed away.

I began to put an altar in my house to continue with the tradition that I learned since my maternal grandparents had passed away. My grandmother Aurora Zubiato passed away in 2006, the same year that I came to live in Roanoke Virginia. Over time, I started acquiring new things to decorate my altar, where I had to have my Virgin of Guadalupe, the photographs of my grandparents, famous people like Celia Cruz, Frida Kahlo, Selena and other famous people who have passed away.

Picture of my cousin Cesar and my grandparents in Juarez, Mexico.

Altar at Casa Latina, Roanoke, Virginia 2019

As the years passed and my children grew up, it was our tradition that they celebrate Halloween and while they were enjoying a party that I had at my house, I spoke to my children, neighbors, and friends about my altar of the day of the dead. This is how I started the tradition for my circle of friends and neighbors. In 2018 and 2019 I began making altars in the windows of two local restaurants in Salem and Roanoke Virginia. In 2020 I also made a virtual altar where people could put photos of their deceased to remember them.

My purpose of creating the altars is to raise awareness of this beautiful tradition that has become part of my family, my culture, and my community. Especially now that we have lost many, many loved ones due to the pandemic, shootings, and attacks. I think it is more meaningful to remember how beautiful their lives were. I heard an expression that said, "God, I'm not asking you why you take [Them] from me, but I thank you for have been giving me the opportunity to have lived with them" Let us remember our deceased with affection, the memories that we create with them, we remember what they liked, what they taught us and above all what we believe, that those days, their souls come to visit us.

And you? Would you like to start this significant tradition by setting up your own altar to celebrate and commemorate the lives of your loved ones who have passed away? Contact us.

Celebrando El día de los muertos.

Altar at the window of El Muchacho Alegre in Salem, Virginia. 2018

Para mí el día de los muertos fue una tradición que se convirtió sin querer en una de las más significativas de mi vida cuando estaba en la universidad de Nuevo México en el Centro de la Raza (UNM) desde el año 2002 cuando falleció mi abuelo Gabriel Cortez. Aprendí sobre esta celebración prehispánica, poniendo los altares decorados con el arte del papel picado, las calaveras de azúcar, los significados de las veladoras, comida y el incienso o copal. Esta tradición se celebra el primero y segundo día de noviembre. El 1ero de noviembre celebramos las almas de los niños que han fallecido y el 2 de noviembre la vida de los adultos. Estos días honramos a nuestros seres queridos que han pasado a mejor vida.

Yo empecé a poner un altar en mi casa para seguir con la tradición que aprendí ya que mis abuelos maternos habían fallecido. Mi abuelita Aurora Zubiate falleció en el 2006, el mismo año que llegué a vivir en Roanoke Virginia. Con el tiempo, me fui haciendo de cosas nuevas para decorar mi altar, donde no podía faltar mi virgen de Guadalupe, las fotografías de mis abuelos, de personas famosas como Celia Cruz, Frida Kahlo, Selena y otras personas que han fallecido.

Conforme pasaron los años y mis hijos crecieron, era nuestra tradición que celebraran el día de Halloween y mientras ellos disfrutaban de una fiesta que hice en mi casa, les hablé a mis hijos, vecinos y amigos sobre mi altar del día de los muertos, así que empecé a hacerlo de una tradición para mi círculo de amigos y vecinos. En el 2018 y 2019 empecé a hacer altares en las ventanas de dos restaurantes locales en Salem y Roanoke Virginia. En el 2020 hice también un altar virtual donde las personas pudieran poner fotos de sus difuntos para recordarlos.

Mi propósito de crear los altares es para crear conciencia de esta hermosa tradición que se ha hecho parte de mi familia, mi cultura y mi comunidad. Especialmente ahora que hemos perdido muchísimos seres queridos a causa de la pandemia, de tiroteos, de atentados y pienso que es bonito recordar lo bonito de sus vidas. Yo escuche una expresión que decía, "Dios, no te pregunto por que me lo quitas, pero te agradezco habérmelo dado". Recordemos a nuestros difuntos con cariño, las memorias que creamos con ellos, recordamos lo que les gustaba, lo que nos enseñaron y sobre todo que creemos, que esos días, sus almas vienen a visitarnos.

Altar at my home in Salem, 2018. Family members.

¿Y tú? ¿Quisieras empezar esta significativa tradición poniendo tu propio altar para celebrar y conmemorar la vida de tus seres queridos que han fallecido? Comunícate con nosotros.

Save Lives Just put the guns down

So I was asked to write an article about those lost to gun violence but I'm not writer. There have been hundreds to thousands lost because people no longer have the heart to fight. "Oh God forbid I get punched in the face today for the stupid words that I said so I am going to ruin multiple lives because I have no heart". That's is basically what you are screaming at the top of your lungs when you pull a gun on someone whose only threat to your life is their two hands and the words that crushed your soft little soul. Not only did you end someone else's life you have now created generational hurt,lack of trust and disgust for your fellow human. I'm not going to name names because it's too many to even begin. But people you need to find a way to do better at resolving the exact same issues that most three year olds can resolve and be back to being best friends in ten minutes. But we adults as well as you teenagers that consider yourself to be so smart are clearly lacking in the common sense and basic problem solving. I don't completely blame the government even tho the taps on the wrist they give and the lollipops they pass out for thoughtless crimes do play a huge part in people's decisions to be so stupid when confronted with conflict. Pull out a gun and pull the trigger and you yourself has now started the physical and mental destruction of multiple beings as well as your own. But hey a small tap on the wrist, twenty years of your "life" are certainly not the correct price to pay for senselessly taking a life and leaving children without a responsible parent. In my opinion life should mean just that...when you take a life you should stay incarcerated until your heart stops, there should be NO pleas allowed if you didn't consider their life no one should allow you to plea for yours. I don't know how to fix what I consider to be a pandemic of ignorance but we as humans have definitely got to do better. And stop crying about "Black Lives Matter" when we blacks have killed more of our own than any other race. That is the type of thinking that has us putting ourselves in these stupid situations. Wake up.
