4. “Dahlia’s Killer Cracking”

Cut & Paste

Los Angeles Herald-Express

1/27/47 @ 6:30 pm.

Postal District #9

Police think it might really have been the killer who made an offer to surrender on a mocking postcard. Officers said the slayer apparently craved the notoriety of his crime and might come forward in a bold and spectacular manner.

Five communications regarding the crime have now come through the mails. The first contained Elizabeth Short's papers. It was followed by the postcard. A letter intercepted in Pasadena read:

"Dahlia killer cracking. Wants terms."