December 2024

Calendar of Upcoming Events

- ★ There will be no General Meeting this month
- ★ December 14: PVMR Christmas Party

Letter from the editor,

After a fun-filled year of events, we get to end the year with cooler days and perfect weather for riding.

In this issue, there is a reminder about the festive Christmas Party this month where we can talk about rides of the past, present and future. Hopefully, without the chain clanging of Marley's ghost. Speaking of the opposite of Scrooge, our members continue to be generous by supporting and donating time and finances to our club. Thank you! (Please send in your Christmas party payment and form by Dec. 4.)

You will find information about the Christmas raffle and camping reservations. Also, articles about the Poker Ride and etiquette on the trail. There is much more throughout the pages and to put a smile on your face, there are some photos of merry horses!

Happy Holidays and Happy Hoof Prints,

Laura

Prez Says: Well, with the Christmas Party being the only event left for the year, I believe we have had a mighty fine year, a couple of bumps, but overall, a fine year. 2025 will be even better with help, support, and participation from our members.

Board Meetings for 2025: January 14, April 22, July 15 and Nov. 4 (All to be held at the Denny's off of Los Coches Rd. at 6:30pm. These meetings are all scheduled for Tuesdays and all PVMR may attend.)

The first event for 2025 is the Membership Brunch at the Clark's Ranch. (More details to follow.) I have a list of food related items that, as members, we need to get. If you have any questions or concerns about anything please contact me.

Respectfully,
Susan Mena
Prez. 2024-2025

PVMR Members: Please do not hesitate to call any of the above with your ideas and opinions that can benefit the club and its members.

Trailer Box or Horse Trailer is Needed for PVMR Supplies.

PVMR is looking for someone who will donate or sell, for a very reasonable price, a storage trailer (or something that can be converted) so that all PVMR club belongings can be organized in one place.

This will save time and lessen the strenuous work of loading and unloading items for events. A safe storage place will also keep items safe from weather or rodent damage and facilitate accurate inventory.

Please spread the word to anyone who may have a trailer that they can donate to our non-profit club.

Winter Wonderland

Song by Brad Paisley

Sleigh bells ring, are you listening,
In the lane, snow is glistening
A beautiful sight,
We're happy tonight,
Walking in a winter wonderland.
Gone away is the bluebird,
Here to stay is a new bird
He sings a new song,
As we go along
Walking in a winter wonderland.
In the meadow we can build a snowman
And pretend that he is Parson Brown
He'll say: Are you married?
We'll say: No man
But you can do the job
When you're in town.

Later on, we'll conspire
As we dream by the fire
To face unafraid,
The plans that we've made,
Walking in a winter wonderland.
In the meadow we can build a snowman,
And pretend that he's a circus clown
We'll have lots of fun with mister snowman,
Until the other kiddies knock him down.
When it snows, ain't it thrilling,
Though your nose gets a chilling
We'll frolic and play, the Eskimo way,
Walking in a winter wonderland.
Walking in a winter wonderland.
Walking in a winter wonderland.

SEE YOU THERE!

Note: Photos are from the January 2024 PVMR Membership Brunch.

California State Parks have a “rolling window” reservation period. The public can reserve campsites six months in advance from the current date. Camping inventory will become available each day at 8:00 am.

You may now make reservations for Vern Whitaker but NOT Green Valley. Green Valley has only walk ups showing on the reservations site and the Reservation Center can not make reservations for you at this point. Ernie Smith will call a park administrator to find out more information. The camp dates for Vern Whitaker are February 20-23 and Green Valley, camp dates are May 9-11. Consider signing up for PVMR camps as early as possible. Use reservocalifornia.com for Anza-Borrego Desert SP and select Equestrian. You will be directed to Vern Whitaker. Green Valley will be under Cuyamaca Rancho SP (When and if available.)

Vallecitos Is a county park and you can make reservations now for November 7-10 2025. Call 858-565-3600 or online at reservations.sdparks.org

Chihuahua Valley is a private camp and will take reservations any time. Camp dates are April 11-13. Call 951-377-3479 and speak to Joy or Dave Pierceall.

The PVMR Poker Ride Event

The Poker Ride event at Windfall Ranch had the potential of being a grand event with entertainment, prizes, trails rides and obstacle challenges for horses and riders. The weather was perfect and the many volunteers were ready and excited but unfortunately, the event took on the air of a lonely, rich kid's birthday party with sparse attendance. So much food and flare and so few people there. Regardless of the tepid showing, the people who did participate had a wonderful time.

Lynn Snyder Harrington was there to guide horse and rider through each of the obstacles. There was a mailbox that opened with a creaky sound and inside was a bottle full of rocks and pebbles. The sturdy teeter totter surprised a few horses as it tipped after the first off-center step. In the spirit of the spooky holiday, a gate was decorated with halloween decor, located next to a horizontal pool-noodle gate. A short wooden bridge seemed to be an easy obstacle for most horses but close by was a square shallow pool that looked like a bottomless pit-not so easy. Lynn's gentle reminders to breathe, look forward, and sit firmly in the seat with relaxed legs helped each horse and rider to navigate the course.

The trials were precisely marked with signs and pink ribbons and short cut trails were marked with yellow ribbons. Terry Howe, the owner of Windfall Ranch did the work of clipping all those ribbons in strategic places so no one would get lost. The trail ascended and descended in many places with a few rocky areas that were just enough to be challenging for the rider. There were also flat areas where one could choose a faster pace. The trees, shrubs and grasses were healthy and beautiful as were the mountainous views in certain spots on the trail. The air was fresh and clean which caused one to breathe deep and enjoy the ride.

Lunch time was a relaxing time of eating with Bob Peterson at the grill and people self-serving themselves with condiments of their choice. The variety of chips and cookies made for a fun addition to the picnic. People socialized and "talked stories" about rides and other adventures.

Bill O'Brien ( who, by the way, happened to be the winner of the poker ride) sold raffle tickets with his side-kick grandson. Barbara Minton's grandchildren were also there to help out by picking tickets out of raffle jars and handing out the winnings. All the kids did a great job keeping the raffle organized with Susan Mena and Jodi Davis running the show. Many people won fantastic, generous gifts that filled over four large tables. The baskets were beautifully displayed with cellophane wrapping and bows and there was so much variety of items. Winners hooted and hollered, made a fun raucous (even a few little jigs) when their numbers were called which caused smiles and laughter.

Later, members questioned why there were so few people in attendance. Some thought the weather forecast of rain might have detoured people. Others wondered if other clubs didn't see the advertisements and someone suggested that maybe Poker Rides have been overdone and that maybe a new form of fundraising event should be explored in the future. Possibly, after people had a break this year they will be back next year in force and not miss out on a great event for a worthy cause.

Part I: Trail Boss, Etiquette & Safety

THOUGHTS FROM THE TRAIL by Bill O'Brien, Trail Boss for PVMR

After many years of being the trail boss for Pine Valley Mountain Riders, I am excited to “share the joy” with those of you volunteering to function in the role of Ride Host and Trail Boss. Sharing your favorite rides with our members is a fun experience.

Group rides are a horse of a different color compared with everyday rides that all of us do. When we ride on our own, we can leave at any time, go fast or slow, stop when we want and even do some schooling at water crossings. We can do whatever our small group of friends wants to do. When leading a group ride, safety is foremost and you never know what riding skills anyone has-horse or rider. General rule: You must pace to the slowest rider!

Some horses (and their riders) are calmer than others. Horses being herd animals, will want to follow a faster horse as they fear the herd is leaving them. This is a natural response that may or may not be easily managed by their rider. The horse needs to feel that they are a herd of two (you being the alpha horse) rather than being a herd of 5 or 10 or 20. All this takes time! Thus, horses leaving and running off from the herd, just will not work in a group ride.

When leading a group ride, it is impossible to please everyone. Do not take it personally; this is just the nature of the task that you are volunteering for. Once again, safety is foremost. Prepare/expect to mentor the least capable group rider and their horse. Take the time to pre-ride, make the flier, be prepared to be available to answer phone calls about “rider and horse readiness” Be prepared to make the hard decision to recommend to a rider – not ready to go.

When participating in a group ride, you will not be able to ride in the same way as when you ride with friends, in a familiar group/trail/speed etc. You will need to read the trail boss's flier carefully, and determine: Are you AND your horse ready for the terrain? The obstacles? The water crossing? Bridge crossing? Physically fit enough for the proposed miles, elevation gain, and length of the ride? Is your horse able to relax at a pace not normally his usual pace? (Faster or slower.) Is it a beginner's ride or is it for an advanced horse and rider? You MUST RSVP to the trail boss of your intention to join the group ride. RSVP is the only way to notify you if the ride is canceled or there are unexpected changes.

Finally: PVMR insurance DOES NOT COVER your injuries to you or your horse. Neither PVMR nor the trail boss is the “responsible party” for your behavior, your horse, or your decision to participate in the group ride. THIS IS ALL YOUR RESPONSIBILITY.

We all have three other weeks in that month to ride as we please. Group rides inherently have a different feel, different energy, different learning experience, and different risk points. Keeping all this in mind, here are some trail boss guidelines that promote leading a safe and fun group ride!

Part II will be continued in the January Hoof Prints Issue

A Christmas Gift Idea

The Breyer Horse Stirrup Christmas Ornament was released in 1999, which followed shortly after the Breyer's Holiday Horse Series that debuted in 1997. The ornament has since become a companion piece to every Holiday Horse as a smaller version encased in a Stirrup.

The Christmas tree decoration is a keepsake with the year of its release embellished on the bottom of each one and has a different name each year. This year, 2024, the name is Apres Ski. This 25th edition is now available and would make a nice gift for your horse loving family members or friends.

Renew And Gift a Membership

The January Membership Brunch is just around the corner, on January 25.

Although new members are welcome to join the club year around, January is the start of the new year with a new calendar of events that may be interesting and enticing to your family and friends. If you would like a membership form to renew or give membership applications to family or friends, print out the PDF sent to you as an attachment each month.

Christmas Gift Idea: If you would like to give a membership as a Christmas present and receive a gift card and calendar, please contact Jodi Davis at 619-802- 3277 or marijo.jodi.davis@gmail.com

Last Cuyamaca/Descanso Historical Feature Page (Continued from the September Hoof Prints issue)

The natural beauty of the place is set off by the background of Guatay Mountain, eastward, and by Cuyamaca Mountain and the Cuyamaca Range to the north and east. At the west of Descanso Park runs the Sweetwater River, flooded in the winter season. A smaller stream, which is said never to run dry, Agua Blanca (now known as Descanso Creek), traverses the Park through ravines of granite boulders, shaded by old oaks and pines.

Jacobs and his sons reportedly designed and built between fifteen to twenty cottages within the tract to “fit in with the natural contour and scenic beauty of the surrounding hills”. One of these cottages, located a half mile to the east of the study site at 25133 Oak Lane, was listed on the San Diego County Register of Historic Places in August 2006.

Both Jacobs, and Hulburt before him, were motivated to develop Descanso into a mountain resort by real estate speculation during economic boom times. The first, between 1887 and 1915, had been stimulated by hopes of San Diego becoming an entrepot for transcontinental shipping. The second, between 1920 and 1930, was in response to an increase in the area's economy due to military and tourist-oriented development. This was especially true regarding the latter, which offered greater profits for rural landowners than agriculture.

The decade of the 1920s represented a period of phenomenal growth throughout Southern California. As more and more motorists came to rely on the automobile as their means of primary transportation, they demanded new and improved paved roads and highways. The result was a network of county and state highways branching out from urban centers into nearby mountain communities like Topanga, Lake Arrowhead, Idyllwild, and Descanso. Expecting an increase in automobile-oriented tourism, real estate speculators purchased and subdivided agricultural land into smaller lots on which they built rustic rental cottages. Others, like Los Angeles industrialist Ralph M. Dyar, who purchased the majority of the adjacent Rancho Cuyamaca in 1924, hoped to build mountain or lakefront resort lodges with rental cottages amid golf courses, equestrian trails, polo fields, and private airports. Here, they would entice tourists to buy lots in nearby tracts so that they could “realize the delights of a whole summer spent in the mountains or the advantages of having a place to run out to for weekends . . . [by building] rustic cottages of their own”.

An (Early) Christmas Miracle

By Simone Schad

I found out about the Texas livestock auction/ kill pen through a friend during a beautiful fall ride. She explicitly said, “Do not look at their website, it’ll break your heart, the slaughter dates are right below the horses’ pictures.”

That evening, I just couldn’t help myself. My fingers typed almost as if guided by an unseen force “Texas Kill Pen” and I landed on the Bowie Horse Sale website. And there they were: Draft horses, minis, foals (too young to be away from their mothers) retired broodmares, Amish cart horses and on the last page, an emaciated black, 22 year old, 16 hands tall gelding with the most defeated, heart broken and confused look on his face. The slaughter date was listed as 11-22-24. (Only four days away!)

His image haunted me all night long and by the morning it was clear to me, I cannot let this horse die. I prayed to God and His angels to show me how to save this horse, after all I am on a tight budget and I don’t even own a trailer or truck to pull one with. It didn’t help that Bowie was 1365 miles away from San Diego.

So I called, texted and emailed several friends, horse rescues and family members, seemingly, without much luck, but the following morning I got a text from my friend: “Your gelding is on the trailer to California (Bakersfield) and we have room in our trailer to pick him up (along with three other kill pen horses) and bring him to San Diego.” I had tears of joy streaming down my face when I got this message that the black gelding was safe. Next, my kind and generous friend from Tucson texted that she would cover the cost for the horse and the transport and yet another kind soul agreed to give him a chance as a therapy horse for autistic children at her ranch once he gains 400 lbs and is settled in.

Wow! A big THANK YOU to all the kind souls that made this happen. For me, this is an (early) Christmas Miracle and proof that prayer, faith in God and a will to do good in the world can move mountains.

Merry Christmas
to all of you!

From, Simone and “Lucky Jack”.
