It is with a heavy heart I write this letter. Durvasula was an enormous and irreplaceable member of the community, and those of fortunate enough to cross his path were better for it.

Sash spent his life creating a better community, and contributing to both America and India. Although his presence will be missed, his contributions will certainly be felt for many years to come.

Communities from the Bay Area to Los Angeles, from America to India, and all across the world mourn Sash. I thank Sash and his family for their great service to all of us, and for touching so many lives in such a meaningful way.
