Optimal Delegation Map for Business

Our goal as CEO is to spend time doing only those things we can do. As your business grows, these tend to include visioncasting, creating content, developing and nurturing key relationships, creating visibility for your personal brand and company.

Remember, just because you CAN do something, does not mean you SHOULD do something. Also, just because you enjoy doing something, does not mean you should be doing it.

Document the tasks and functions required to run your business. Think about what it would cost to pay someone else to do that task and write it in the appropriate column.

Optimal Delegation Map for Home

We have 24 hours in each day. Think about what you are currently making in your business. Think about the household tasks you are currently doing.

Does it make sense to continue to do these things?

Document the tasks and functions required to run your home. Think about what it would cost to pay someone else to do that task and write it in the appropriate column.

When we outsource at home we have more time to either work on our business, spend time with our family or friends, self-care or passion projects.

What if you had no fear of judgement from others? What would you be delegating?
