

Bobby
Hines

Quang Tri province, the northernmost province in South Vietnam

Bob Hines

I thought they were joking when I was told my platoon was a bunch of monkeys.

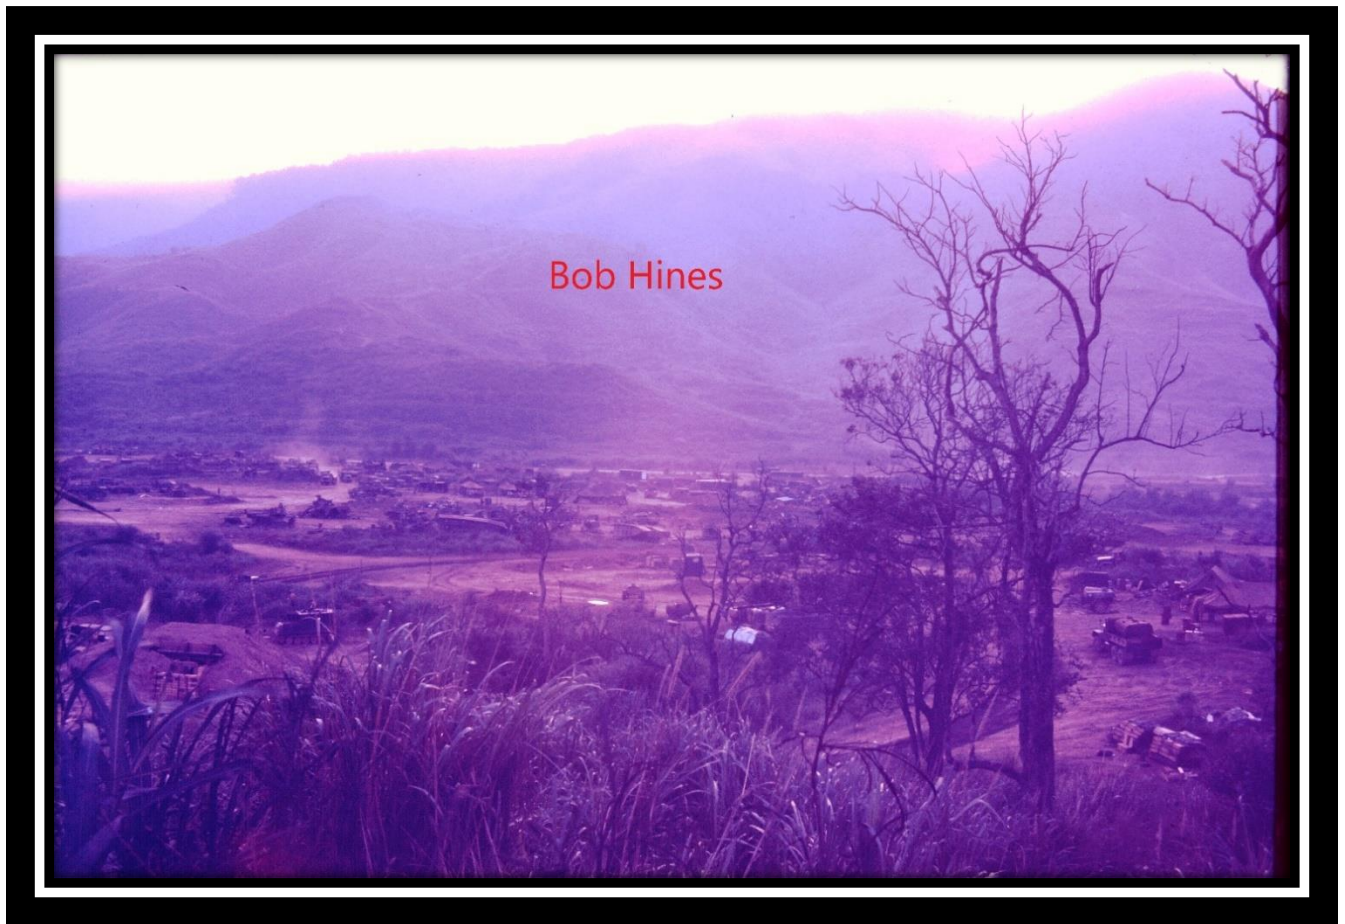

Bob Hines

Time for a little preventative maintenance.

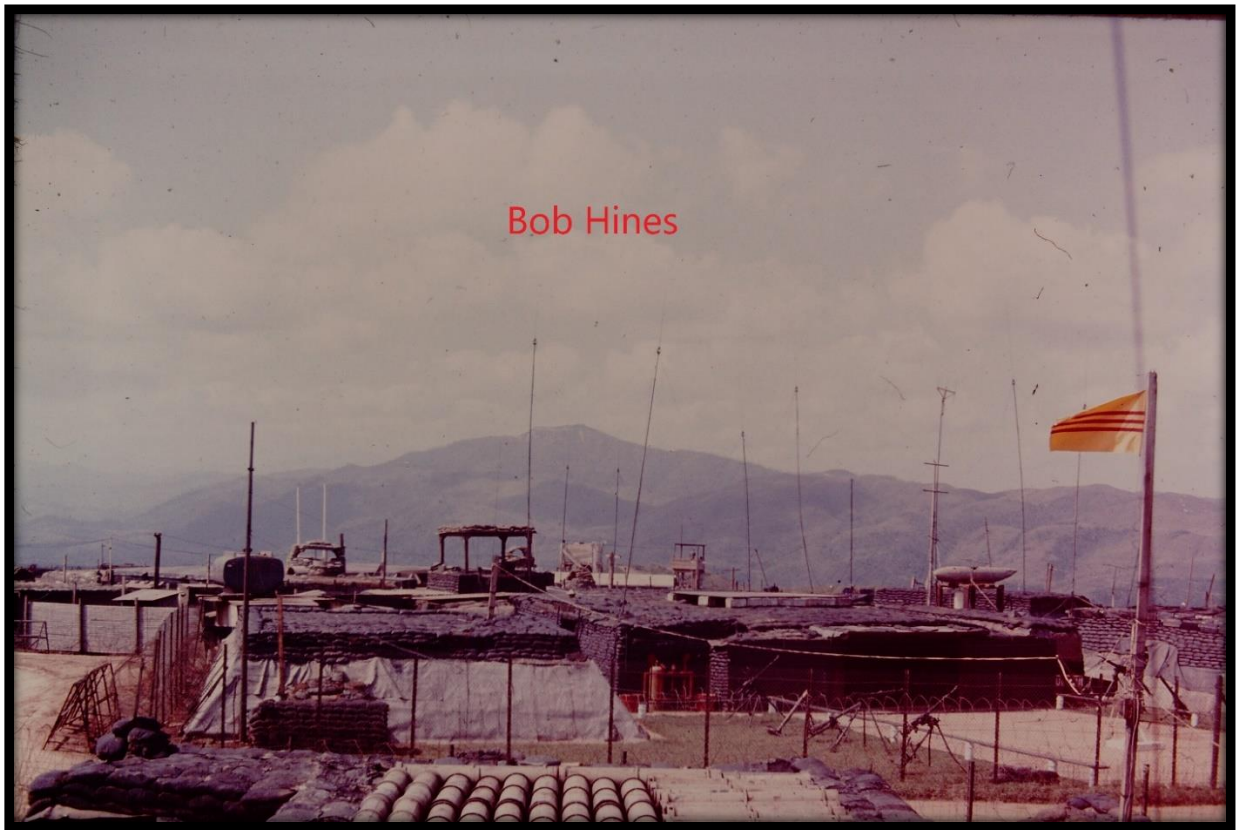

Rolling down QL 9 towards the Laotian border.

FSB Vandergrift during operation Lam Son 719, the invasion of Laos by our ARVN allies.

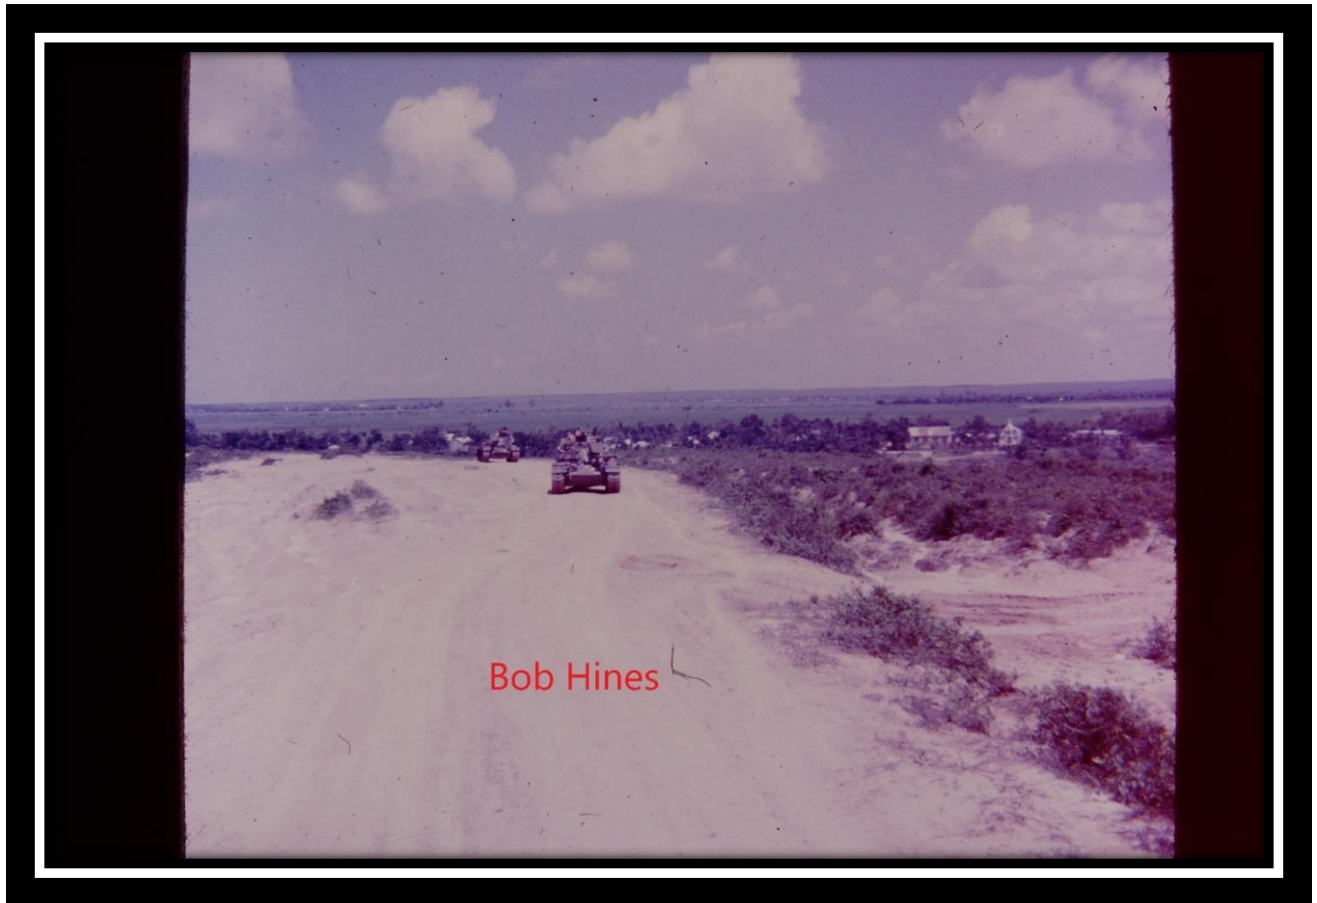

Bob Hines

Camp Carroll, looking towards the DMZ. Camp Carroll was originally a Marine outpost, part of the (Robert) McNamara line, established to prevent infiltration from North Vietnam.

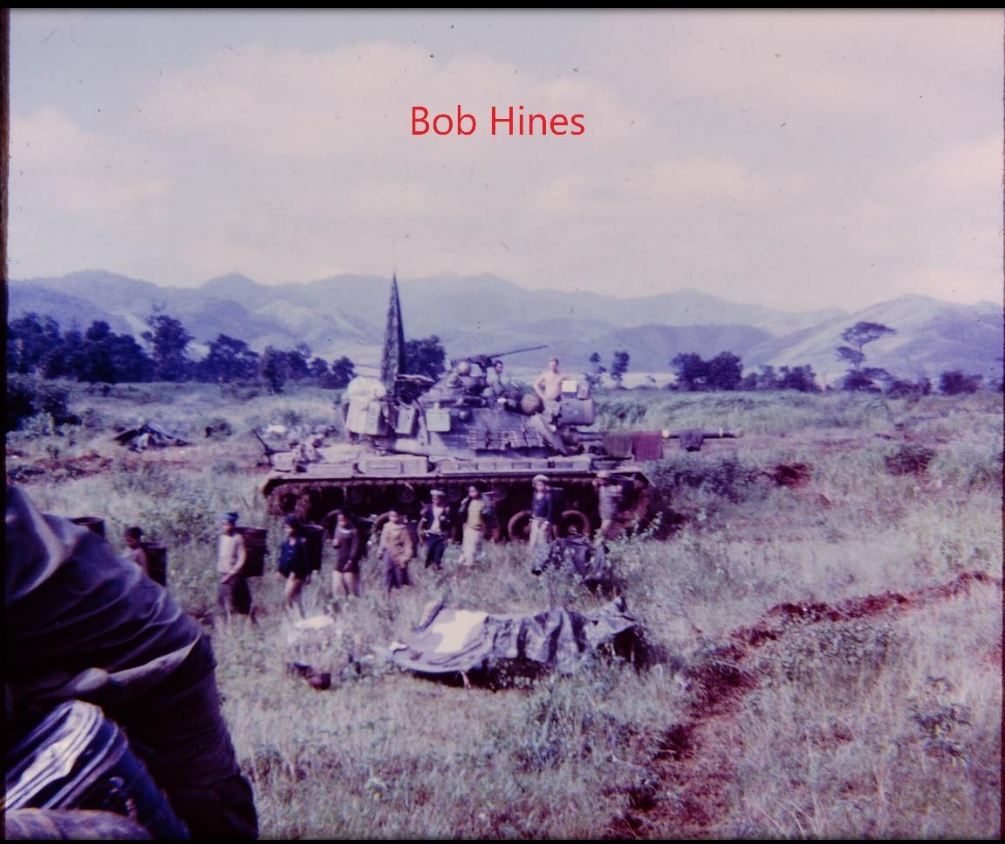

122mm rocket, part of a display of captured NVA weapons at Camp Carroll.

1st Platoon, A Company, 1st Bn, 77th Armor Bde attached to the 1st Bde, 5th Infantry Div, (Mechanized) Although not what most people think of when Vietnam is mentioned, this was our AO and it was definitely tank country.

Bob Hines

Women from a local village going to gather the daily supply of firewood. Obviously, our NDP was on their path, and a few tanks were not going to impede progress. The makeshift tent in the foreground belonged to an RF/PF platoon we had been working with for a few days.

My favorite picture, the last one taken on the flight home. Cam Ranh Bay