Using Illustrations to Create Comics

Webb Montgomery

Webb Montgomery is an Animation Major and Sequential Minor at the Savannah College of Art and Design Graduating working toward a BFA in 2019. He has been making comics since 2011. In 2015 Webb won two scholastic art and writing awards. One for sequential art and the other for illustration. When not doing sequential art, he enjoys creating illustrations with some form of narrative. Webb also works as a freelance artist. Visit Webb's site at https://webbmontgomery.myportfolio.com/

Comic Illustration - Foundation

Price: $45 (Supplies included)

Student Limit: 12 Age limit: 12 and older

Time: Sunday, Dec 3 - 1-3:30 PM Deadline to signup is Dec 1

In this course, students will learn how to tell a story through illustration (primarily comics). Not only will students learn how to tell a story, but they will also learn how to properly format and ink their work through hands on experience. The paper, pens and pencils used to achieve this will be supplied to each student in class. Through this course, students will learn the basics:

- Basic Storytelling, Conflict/Resolution
- The Importance of Silhouettes
- Inking, line weights
- Framing shots
- Thumbnails

Comic Illustration – Putting It All Together

Price: $75 (Supplies included)

Student Limit: 12 Age limit: 12 and older

Time: Sunday, Dec 10 & 17 - 1-3:30 PM

Deadline to signup is Dec 8

This class goes deeper into creating illustrations to tell stories using silhouettes, communicating emotions and feeling, framing drawings, thumbnail sketching, and inking to create the student's final project – their own illustrated comic.

Payment: Online payment available at www.mooresvillearts.org or the Mooresville Arts Gallery during gallery hours, 103 West Center Ave, Mooresville NC 28115

Questions: If you have any questions, please contact us by email at educ.mooresvillearts@gmail.com