

Q. How will you examine the cause of domestic violence? Specify the research design and procedure for it.

→ In order to examine the cause of domestic violence, I'll establish a cause-effect relationship (correlation) between the potential causes of domestic violence and its resulting effect.

As the effect has already taken place → Ex-post facto research design will be suitable.

for ethical and practical reasons, direct experimental study can't be done

I'll establish the correlations between potential causes (independent variable) and the effect (dependent variable). All correlations can't be the causes, so they need to be rejected.

Procedure

1.] Framing the problem statement + Literature Survey

• Why is domestic violence happening?

2.] Hypothesis / Tentative solutions

nor required

3.] Research design

- To establish cause-effect relationship

↳ Explanatory research design (RD)

↳ Ex-post facto RD

4.] Sampling

- Selecting a proportion of population which has reported domestic violence

5.] Selecting the tools for data collection

6.] Data collection

your approach is fine. you however could not elaborate the other points like sampling, developing tools of data connection as you wasted too many words in the beginning.. try to be more precise and concise.
