Nick "Nina" D'Onofrio was a three sports star at NRHS. Playing football, basketball and baseball, he earned All-County and All-Metropolitan honors. Nick was an accurate place kicker, scoring 22 points in one game, which included a 65 yard touchdown run. Moving on to Cornell University, "Big Nick" started as fullback for the Big Red. After a stint in the Army, he returned to the starting fullback role. An "A" student, Nick continued his education at Cornell Law School. He ran for City Council twice in the 60's. Nick exemplifies a Hall Of Fame high school athlete, who went on to college stardom, fought a war for his country, and came back to contribute his energies and talents to his home town.
